What Is Happiness? Mr. Molomod Learns So Does Kossofsky Ford Will Get the Shoals

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922 by Star Co.)

"What is happiness, where found?" Not in money, slaves, servants with powdered hair and silken calves, much eating and drinking, great lands, fine houses.

Just south of Red Bank, N. J., yesterday, three little boys had all to themselves a frozen pond as big as a small ballroom. In the middle on a tiny island they had lighted dried bushes and grass. They skated, then warmed themselves, then skated again. They brought dried grass from the edge of the pond, and added to the fire. The Kaiser in his glory was never happier than that.

Moses Molomod, who says he is "a learned man," still has some things to learn. He arrived from Libau on Saturday, traveling first class. His wife came with him, in the steerage. He explained to the immigration authorities that, being learned, he must travel first class. It didn't matter with his wife. She is not learned. Nevertheless, they were both taken to Ellis Island, and Molomod has learned something more.

This country has its weak spots, its various kinds of foolishness. But it can teach what many in Europe need to know—that a woman is at least as good as her husband. Usually much better.

Mr. Kossofsky decided to attract public attention, and did. He said, "I must make people know I have a fur business." He made them know it.

He tied a string around the mouth of a small fox, so it couldn't bite, turned the fox loose in crowded Fifth avenue, New York, and offered a reward to him that should catch it. An automobile broke the fox's leg.

Every newspaper gave Kossofsky free publicity. The judge gave him a short term in jail and a fine. Whether he sold any more furs is not known.

Mr. Kossofsky now realizes what the scientist meant when he said, "Dirt is matter out of place." Kossofsky put his fox hunt in the wrong place, and it suddenly became cruelty.

If he had bought a red coat, top-hat, white buckskin breeches, black boots, a jumping horse, and a pack of hounds he could have let the hounds chew up many "big foxes" and it would have been "gentlemen's sport," not cruelty. That is something consoling for Mr. Kossofsky. He should also meditate on the foolishness of sensational advertising. If you have furs for sale, say,

"I have furs for sale." And don't say it with foxes.

Mr. Weeks, Secretary of War, says Henry Ford's bid for Muscle Shoals is the best. That's good news, creditable to Mr. Weeks and to Mr. Harding's administration.

And incidentally, as shall be explained more at length, in developing water power Ford will do for the national defence far more than could be done by the building of a dozen battleships, or the giving of his entire fortune of, say, a thousand millions.

A new labor injunction in Buffalo. The judge forbids workers to picket factories. That is old. Old also is the injunction forbidding persuasion by workmen, although the constitution approves it. The new thing in Buffalo's injunction is forbidding workmen to hold union meetings or pay strike benefits. That is new, a long step in the direction of abolishing unions by injunction.

Where, by the way, would you find a judge to forbid employers to form an association, hold meetings, discuss their interests or pay each other money if they chose?

In New York, another crowd of men, "United Labor Council of America," made up of radicals, seeks to capture the American Federation of Labor, and is alleged, as usual, to receive orders from Moscow

Attacked from above by the power of courts, and below by extreme radicalism the great American federation can sympathize with the ancient dinosaur, its feet attacked by rats, its head seventy feet up in the air, attacked by flying lizards.

GRIFFITH NEW IRISH PRESIDENT

Provisional Government for the Irish Free State Formed at Dublin

By International News Service.

Dublin, Jan. 9.—Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein, this afternoon formed a provisional government for Southern Ireland, himself taking the office of president.

(Note: While De Valera claimed the title of "President of the Irish Republic," it is likely that Griffith will be known as President of the Irish Free State.)

Michael Collins, commander of the Irish Republican Army and Minister of Finance in the old Sinn Fein Cabinet, announced in the Dail this afternoon that all subscribers to the Republican loan would be paid to the last penny.

A motion to re-elect De Valera President of the Irish Republic failed. The vote was sixty against the motion and fifty-eight in favor of it.

Conflict Renewed in the Dail Eireann

Dublin, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press).—As soon as the Dail Eireann was convened this morning Eamon De Valera arose and placed his resignation as President of the Irish Republic before the House.

Michael Collins, one of the leaders in support of the Irish treaty, which was ratified Saturday over Mr. De Valera's opposition, said that no one in the Dail wished to be put in the position of opposing President De Valera.

He pointed out that the Dail was now faced with the problem of taking over all vehicles, at 5 p. m.

RADCLIFFE COLLEGE GIRL SHOT

TWO GIRLS TESTIFY IN LOUD CASE

Witnesses Describe Finding of Body of the Murdered Policeman

Two girl witnesses, Miss Margaret Day of Medford and Miss Gladys Hunt, appeared today for the first time at the trial of Clarences W. Loud, charged with the murder of Patrolman James A. Preston, which is being heard in Superior Court at East Cambridge.

The young women were passengers in an automobile driven by Bertram Dearborn, and also containing Douglas Day, which was stopped by Frederick M. Libby shortly after the murder of the policeman.

Miss Day was called to the stand as the first woman witness, following the testimony of Dearborn, who was searchingly cross-examined by Attorney John P. Feeney for the defence.

Dearborn told of being stopped by a man he identified as Libby on Lowell street on the night of April 3. He said he backed his car and saw the body of the policeman lying on its right side, feet toward the road, and with a burning flashlight nearby.

RAN TOWARD FIELD.

The witness said that, following conversation with the man who had stopped him, the other ran toward the field. Dearborn said he reported what he had seen to Chief Pollard at the Wakefield station and then returned to the scene.

An attempt by the district attorney to get in evidence of a conversation heard by Dearborn between Libby and Chief Pollard met with objections from Feeney and was eventually abandoned.

The witness said she established the time by the fact that it was 9 o'clock when his party reached Melrose. Under cross-examination he said this time was fixed in his mind, because one of his party remarked that it was rather late to get started.

Feeney brought out from the witness the definite statement that he remembered passing two cars from the corner of Main and Lowell street. The witness declared the car he was riding in the night in question was not a Ford, but a Dodge touring car with side curtains.

LIBBY RESUMES STAND.

In response to further questions, Dearborn stated he could not have been driving any other car that night. He said he had sold the machine July 15 last and purchased a new one.

Attorney Feeney then asked the witness where he carried his operator's license, but District Attorney Saltonstall objected and the question was excluded by the court. The witness was then shown a flashlight and, after saying it looked like the one clutched in the officer's hand, was excused.

Frederick M. Libby resumed the

LUNA AND DUBOK GET 18-25 YEARS

Luna and Dubec Sentenced for $28,444 Holdup of Bank Men in Chelsea

Sentences from eighteen to twenty-five years each in State Prison were imposed by Judge Bishop in Suffolk Superior Court today upon John Luna and John Dubok, two of the men found guilty of holding up and robbing Albert Kelly, John A. Coyne, Charles M Pompay and Thomas Horgan, messengers of the First National Bank, of $28,444.80, while they were about to deliver the money to the Walton shoe factory in Chelsea, on November 26 last.

John Piotkowicz, eighteen years of age, who was also found guilty of being concerned in the holdup and robbery was sentenced to five years and one month to the Concord Reformatory.

Assistant District Attorney Henry P. Fielding stated to the court that in view of the nature of the crime which he said was one of the boldest ever committed in this community, that a sentence of not less than twenty-five years be imposed.

Piotkowicz, who is the youngest of the trio sentenced, according to his mother who came on from Detroit, was an organ and choir boy in the Polish church in that city and bore an excellent reputation.

Lieutenant Inspector Harrison of the Chelsea police told Judge Bishop that he believed that the young man was a victim of the other two men. A letter in the young man's behalf was also received from the Polish priest in Detroit recommending leniency.

During the hearing it developed that Luna and Dubok were wanted in Scanton, Pa., for a $2,000 holdup, which occurred there on October 25 last.

Ambassador to England Hurt in Automobile Accident

GEORGE HARVEY

Cannes, France, Jan. 9.—George Harvey, American Ambassador to England and observer for the United States at the Supreme Council meeting, was injured in an automobile collision today.

The attending physician said that they hoped that Mr. Harvey's injuries were not serious, but they ordered him to remain quietly in bed during the balance of the day.

The American Ambassador, accompanied by H. Wickham Steed, editor of the London Times, was on his way to the golf links when another motor car, coming up swiftly from behind, struck his automobile on the side.

Both Mr. Harvey and Mr. Steed were thrown to the pavement.

Spectators rushing up found Mr. Harvey unconscious. He was taken immediately to the Carlton Hotel, where three physicians, including the personal doctor to Premier Briand, of France, were summoned.

They found Mr. Harvey suffering from injuries about the head.

REQUESTS EMERSON PAPERS

Defers Cross-Examination of Matches Until Documents Are Received From Capital

President Warren G. Harding has been appealed to to order the delivery of certain documents valuable to the defense in the trial of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, before the Supreme Court, on charges of official misconduct.

Senator James Reed, counsel for Pelletier made this announcement today in the course of a lively session ended with interesting developments.

Other interesting developments today were as follows:

1—Daniel H. Sugrue of Daniel H. Coakley's office, "sought" by the State as a witness for three weeks, according to Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, turned up at the court house and an Turn Over.

SENATOR REED FIGHTS ADMISSION OF BANK RECORDS AS EVIDENCE

DENOUNCES LATEST MOVE BY PROSECUTION AS FLIMSY AND UNFAIR METHOD

nounced that the search must have been rather half-hearted, as he had not been more than a mile from the State House in all that time.

2—Senator Reed scored when he secured a court order assuring the return of Matches, State witness, for cross-examination later. Matches will return to the stand Wednesday, if he remains in the city, and Monday if he goes to Kansas City meantime to transact business.

3—Bank accounts of Pelletier and Daniel H. Coakley were gone into at length by the State, despite the claim of Senator Reed that the line of testimony was designed to be unfair, flimsy and "inferential."

4—Alfred Soracco case was taken up when the Emerson Motors case was temporarily dropped. Soracco was one of the licensees of the Genoa Cafe in Province street. Allen charges Soracco allowed a liquor nuisance complaint against him early this year to fail for lack of prosecution.

Daniel H. Sugrue made his appearance in court in rather ironic fashion shortly after Attorney General Allen had told of the herculean efforts of his agents to find the man, who is Coakley's office manager.

"I am informed Sugrue is in the courtroom now" said Reed, and the humorous anti-climax brought smiles.

At noon recess Sugrue told newspapermen that a State officer assigned to "look for him" had submitted he went to Coakley's office only once in the course of his search.

Much of the morning testimony was regarding the Pelletier and Coakley accounts at the Old Colony Trust Company. Reed characterized it as "flimsy and unfair."

He said the State was bolstering up its case by putting in inferences rather than evidence and that, to make such evidence competent, the prosecution must link up these various deposits and withdrawals and show some alleged relation between them and high counsel fees in certain cases.

One of the State's witnesses had testified that of the $20,500 paid in the settlement of the Emerson Motors case the settlement was to be $5,000 to Pelletier, $5,000 to Francis M. Carroll and $10,500 to Coakley.

GRILLING PUT OFF.

The day started with the announcement by Senator Reed that he would not cross-examine Robert P. Matches the star State witness in the Emerson Motors case, today. He asked for time to get some papers to prepare his cross-examination.

The appearance of Emerson W. Bosworth, assistant cashier of the Old Colony Trust Company, precipitated a clash between counsel.

Senator Reed maintained that the whole matter of showing deposits and withdrawals in banks by Pelletier and Coakley was being handled unfairly and by inferences rather than evidence.

Q.—Did Coakley deposit $15,500 in the bank October 9, 19167. A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he withdraw $5,000 on October 9? A.—Yes.

Senator Reed—I object. First, b cause this has not been connected with the respondent and, second, b cause a transcript of the bank records regarding which testimony is bein given is not the best evidence. Bring the original check or a photographic copy of it in in the possession of the State.

Attorney James J. McCarthy of the prosecution produced the photographic copy.

On request by Senator Reed it was offered in evidence. It showed that on October 11, 1916 $5,000 was paid to Daniel H. Sugrue and was signed by Daniel H. Coakley.

Attorney McCarthy—Did Pelletier deposit $5,000 in cash with the Old Colony Trust Company?

TWO WEEKS LATER.

Senator Reed—I object to that question. It does not show anything more than that he had that much money. Furthermore, I claim this was deposited a week after the alleged conspiracy on October 11.

Chief Justice Rugg—The question is allowed.

Witness—Mr. Pelletier made a cash deposit of $5,000 on October 25, 1916.

Senator Reed—Well, that makes it two weeks instead of a week after the alleged conspiracy. I contend it is altogether too remote to be material here.

Chief Justice Rugg—The answer may stand.

Q.—Did Pelletier deposit the $5,000 in the Old Colony Trust Company? A.—Yes. On October 25.

The deposit slip was made an exhibit. It showed the deposit was made at noon of that day, in cash.

Q.—Do you know whether Pelletier had a deposit box in the Old Colony Trust? A.—Yes.

LEAVES SUSPICION.

Senator Reed—This line of evidence is being offered by the State simply to create suspicion. I ask the court, in the protection of my client, to show by the direct connection that because of his $5,000, and not show it by inference. This should be done by introducing Sugrue as a witness, and when he is on the stand we can find out what he got this money for and what he did with it. That is the proper manner.

Attorney-General Allen—We have been trying to find Daniel H. Sugrue for three weeks. We have had operatives watching his house and Coakley's office, but as in the Tufts case we learn he cannot be found.

Senator Reed—I never saw Sugrue in my life, but I have information he is in town and can be obtained.

Senator Reed took Bosworth for cross-examination.

Q.—Then all you know about this Coakley account is that he deposited and withdrew money from time to time? A.—Yes.

BORROWED $67,500.

Q.—And this transcript extends from October 2 to November 1, 19167 A.—Yes.

Q.—And you know nothing more about the $15,500 than that he deposited it? A.—No.

Q.—And that on October 14 Coakley borrowed $67,500 from your bank? A.—Yes.

Q.—On October 11 he drew $5,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—And on October 16, $20,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—And on October 9, $1,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—And on October 17, $20,750? A.—Yes.

Q.—And on October 17, another $5,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—But the $5,000 to which our attention has been called was withdrawn on October 11? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was that an unusual thing, for Coakley to withdraw $5,000 from your bank? A.—No.

Q.—Did the slip show that on October 5 Coakley deposited $7,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—On October 9, $16,500? A.—Yes.

Q.—On October 12 or 13, $5,212.50? A.—Yes.

Q.—On October 14 he made the loan of $67,500 and left it in the bank? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that on the same day he put in $10,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that he checked out $5,000 on October 28? A.—Yes.

Q.—And throughout the month checked out amounts ranging from $500 to $1,000? A.—Yes, only one of $1,000 and one of $5,000.

OTHER TRANSACTIONS.

Q.—So Pelletier was checking out money both during the month before and the month after the alleged $5,000 transaction? A.—Yes.

Q.—And on the 28th he withdrew $5,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, the credit side of his account showed that he put $2,000 in cash in the bank on the 13th?

Q.—Now it shows here that on the 28th he put in $5,000 in cash. A.—Yes.

Q.—And Pelletier had been in the habit of putting cash in the bank off and on? A.—I presume so.

Q.—And the accounts show it was his custom and habit, extending over years? A.—Yes.

Q.—And it shows that any other $5,000 deposits might be collected and alleged to have a connection with Coakley? A.—I don't know anything about that.

Next witness was George W. Grant, vice-president of the Old Colony Trust Company. He testified that Pelletier visited his safe deposit vault on October 13, 1916, at 11:30 o'clock and that on October 28 at 11:44 o'clock.

Attorney McCarthy pointed out that it was at 12 o'clock on the latter date that Pelletier deposited $5,000 in bills

OTHER DATES

Cross examination by Senator Reed:

Q.—These are not the only dates that Pelletier visited his safe deposit vault that month? A.—No.

Q.—How long had he had a box? A.—Since April 17, 1916.

Q.—Did he have a box jointly before that? A.—The box was in the name of Lavelle, who transferred it to Pelletier.

Chief Inspector John R. McGarr of the Police Department testified he conferred with Pelletier about September 22, 1916; again before October 1; and possibly once or twice after the report of Inspectors Farrell and Waite in the Emerson Motors case.

TOLD ABOUT AD.

He said that up to the time Inspector Farrell was sent out to make an investigation he had received information that a full page ad of the Emerson Motors Company appeared in a newspaper; that the stock was no good; that they had a motor car for exhibition on Boylston street, which was an assembled car, advertised for $395, but actually costing $1,000 to build; and that a Boston paper had refused to use an advertisement of the company.

McGarr testified that his informants were from the Boston paper. Under cross-examination he said he had told Assistant District Attorney Allen of information he had received before sending Inspector Farrell out to investigate.

Q.—On the first occasion you talked with Pelletier, did he not say he had just returned from a trip somewhere and had been looking at the Emerson Motors and coming up on the boat? A.—My impression is his attorney called to the aid on his way to his office and that he was glad I had come in.

Q.—And you tell Pelletier occasionally of the reports made you by Inspector Farrell? A.—Yes.

ASSENTED READILY.

Q.—Did you tell Pelletier what you had learned before Inspector Waite went to New York? A.—Yes. I asked him for authority to send Waite to make further investigation.

Q.—He assented readily, did he not? A.—Yes.

McGarr admitted that Pelletier had ordered an investigation along ordinary channels; that he had offered no obstruction and guaranteed to pay the expenses from his office.

The bank clerk from the Old Colony Trust Company produced records showing that Thomas L. Lavelle and District Attorney Pelletier had shared a vault there which Lavelle had rented on July 24, 1913. On April 17, 1916, Lavelle transferred sole access to the vault to Pelletier.

Witness testified that Pelletier visited the vault on October 13, 1916, October 25, November 1 and December 7, 1916. Justice Rugg—Is there any record of his visiting the vault in November? A.—Yes, on November 1, at 12 p. m.

Senator Reed then announced that Daniel H. Sugrue was in court.

"EMPLOY" MATCHES.

Attorney McCarthy: "I wish to try this case as I want to. I propose to try it in my own way." He then called by Miss T. Downing, a bookkeeper in Coakley's office.

While court officers were hunting for her, Attorney-General Allen announced that Robert C. Matches had important business in Kansas City. Allen said Matches had to be in this city in order to sign dividend checks, the company in which he is not an official. On that account Allen felt that Senator Reed should finish his cross-examination at once. Allen said Matches had come vountarily as a witness.

Senator Reed said that the defence had not been definitely assured that they would "employ" Matches.

Attorney-General Allen: You mean by "employ" to call him?

Senator Reed: Certainly, you are supersensitive. I meant no reflection on the esteemed Attorney-General. This witness, Matches, is here under peculiar circumstances. And on that account we want to have him heard. If the case is finished, certain matters have developed since this witness testified which caused me to want papers.

I have requested the assistance of the President to get these papers. The Department of Justice is trying to secure them will probably produce them by (illegible) morning or Thursday at the latest. I want this witness as a matter of right and justice.

I have been as accommodating as possible in the treatment of witnesses, but I felt in the case of this witness that he should be held until the trial is closed. From what I know of the company there is nothing very urgent about these dividends.

Chief Justice Rugg conferred with the other justices and announced that the witness Matches should be in attendance until Wednesday morning. Senator Reed said that it should be extended until Thursday morning and reminded the court that he could not complete his cross-examination of the witness until the papers arrived.

After argument by both sides regarding the return of Matches to the stand for a completion of cross-examination it was ruled he should be allowed to return to Kansas City today, if he wished, and he should be returned to Boston next Monday.

It was agreed that if he did not go he would be put on the stand Wednesday.

SUGRUE IN COURT.

James T. Downing, for eighteen years a stenographer and bookkeeper for Daniel H. Coakley, was called to the stand by the State, in an attempt to show that the $5,000 paid to Sugrue was not his salary. The witness did not know how much money Sugrue received and Senator Reed declared that he was ready to admit that Sugrue was an associate of Coakley; that he was largely trusted in transactions, and that he had certain amount of certain cases.

Reed declared, however, that Sugrue was present in the courtroom, according to his information. "The court has indicated that if we admit the check matter cleared up," he said. "I suggest that the man who knows most about the checks be put on the stand, so this matter shall not be left to inference."

Attorney-General Allen made the statement Sugrue couldn't be found. "I am now writing for him in the courtroom. He should be put on the stand."

Attorney-General Allen—We thought to get Sugrue to prove payment. That has since been admitted. We have proved that Pelletier went to his safe deposit box on one day and the days following he went to the box again, fourteen minutes before he deposited $5,000. Has the respondent any defence to that?

MOTION DENIED.

Senator Reed—I move to strike out the evidence in this case because the best evidence has not been produced and because it has not been proved that this money went to Pelletier.

Chief Justice Rugg—The motion to strike out is denied.

Attorney McCarthy offered a letter in evidence, dated October 19, 1916, from George H. Wilson to Pelletier, in which Stimson said he had attempted to see Pelletier several times, and that he would like to inquire if there was any investigation going on in the district attorney's office in relation to the Emerson Motors Company.

Stimson had been a witness before in the Emerson Motors case. He said, in the letter, he had heard rumors of investigation and wished to inform his friends as to whether the company was all right or no. He said that the Robert P. Matches Company had "a queer look" because he understood Matches had been mixed up in a deal in which several men were indicted. The letter was signed "O. R. Simpson, Roslindale."

Attorney McCarthy attempted to offer in evidence Pelletier's letter in reply. Senator Reed objected that there was no evidence that the letter was from Pelletier and McCarthy called Assistant District Attorney Fred M. J. Sheehan to the stand.

Sheehan identified the signature as that of Pelletier. Reed objected that there was no evidence the letter had been received. He said the witness was in the courtroom and should take the stand. Sheehan was called to the stand.

He identified the letter as one he had received from Pelletier. It was dated October 19, 1916. It read as follows: "I have your letter. There is no complaint in my office against the company and I have never received any complaint. Of course I would not recommend any company. I would recommend that you are taking chances in recommending stock to your friends unless you have personally investigated it. I have read in the papers that the company is ready to open its books to the public. Signed, Joseph C. Pelletier."

Q.—Why did you write this letter to Pelletier? A.—I was a stockholder in the company.

Q.—How much stock have you got? A.—Fifty to seventy-five shares.

Q.—Was any of the stock afterward redeemed? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't make any investment after you received the letter? from Pelletier did you? A.—No. I think I did. I have some of the stock here in my pocket.

He produced a sheaf of stock certificates and Senator Reed went through it. They disclosed that Stimson had bought considerable stock for his wife; had purchased several shares late in 1916 and early in 1917.

Q.—You didn't buy a single share in Boston after Pelletier's letter? A.—I don't think so.

Q.—In order to get the stock after you received Pelletier's letter, you had to go to New York? A.—Yes.

Q.—You assumed the stock was good, even after you had written to Pelletier? A.—Yes.

Q.—You took it on the strength of these statements? A.—Yes.

Senator Reed reminded the court that the attorney-general had been asked by the court to offer proof to connect the $5,000 Sugrue check with Pelletier.

Reed said the best way to do that was to introduce Sugrue as a witness.

SUGRUE'S STATEMENT.

"I insist as matter of law and in view of the inferential evidence offered by the State that this witness be called now, and if this be not done, that the court strike all evidence as to this check out now," he continued.

Reed said he had seen a statement in newspaper men. He said: "I have been before my home and my office continuously, and have never been more than a mile away from the State House. I have a statement that offers has been hunting me for three weeks to find. I just interviewed State Officer Hale and he admitted he visited Coakley's office only once, in search of me."

The Alfred Soracco case was reached. Soracco was charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance at the Genoa Cafe in Province street in February, 1921. Pelletier is accused by Allen of having not pressed the complaint on an indictment and to have so done from improper motives. Assistant District Attorney David Manockvitz did the actual not prossing.

Records introduced by Allen showed that Soracco pleaded guilty to the complaint, was found guilty, February 25, 1921, sentenced to three months and fined $500. On appealed. There were fourteen witnesses against him, nearly all police officers.

BARTENDER FINED.

Sergeant Archibald Campbell testified at the original trial of Soracco that Soracco was one of two of the licensees on a victualler's license and that intoxicated men were seen and came out drunk. He said there had been arrests of patrons there. Allen introduced a record of Robert Romain, a bartender, who was fined for selling liquor there.

Attorney-General Allen introduced a memorandum signed by the initials of Assistant District Attorney David Mancovitz, dated April 13, 1921, and saying, "In this case no evidence to offer." Exceptions. Empanel a jury and order a sentence of not guilty."

Allen also introduced a record showing that a verdict of not guilty was brought in on the same day the memorandum was written.

Sergeant Campbell testified that all twelve witnesses who testified in the lower court were available when the case was disposed of. He said he never was called in the district attorney's office about the case and did not learn of its disposition until some months later.

Q.—Did you know that Soracco's mother was running the place? A.—No. I thought it was his father.

Q.—How long after this incident was the name of Soracco dropped from the license? A.—I believe two weeks.

Q.—Do you know that when the case was presented to Assistant District Attorney Mancovitz there was shown to him that there was only one witness on the list than you and that the woman who ran the place was going to sail? A.—No.

LETTER FROM CURTIS.

Inspector George W. Patterson testified that he was on the case of Edward Hassell, who was given four months in jail, and that later this was reduced by Assistant District Attorney Mancovitz from the four months to a $5 fine.

Chief Justice Rugg asked if the attorney-general expected to connect Pelletier with the transaction.

Allen attempted to offer a letter written by Police Commissioner Curtis to Pelletier in which Curtis called attention to the fact that all through the Winter had been receiving complaints about the sale of liquor in Province street. Senator Reed objected that Station 2 had been ordered to stop it; and mentioned Captain Kneeland's report on the case. Chief Justice excluded this testimony.

Edward J. Lord, clerk of the Municipal Court, testified concerning witnesses in the Soracco case in the lower court.

TO ASK NEW TRIAL FOR THREE BRAVAS

New Bedford, Jan. 9.—A final effort to win a new trial for the three Brava youths, John Dies, Joseph Andrews and Benjamin Gomes, who are serving sentence of twenty to thirty years in State Prison for attack on Miss Gertrude Butler of Bumards Bay, will be made this week.

Attorney Edwin B. Jordan of this city, who appeared for Gomes, asserted that exceptions would be filed with the Supreme Court within a few days.

3 INJURED IN CRASH OF AUTOS AT HOLYOKE

Holyoke, Jan. 9.—One man is in the City Hospital today, two others are confined to their homes by injuries and a fourth is locked up in jail, as the result of a collision of automobiles here. A small car in which four were riding, driven by Ignatius Grodek, crashed into a car driven by E. O. Clark, Jr., of Springfield. No one in the Clark car was injured and Grodek will be arraigned in court on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

NORTH DAKOTA EXCISE TAX INVALID, COURT RULES

Washington, Jan. 9.—The excise taxes imposed by North Dakota upon railroads within the State were held by the Supreme Court today to be invalid.

IRISH FACTIONS CLASH IN DAIL EIREANN

De Valera Reaffirms Resignation; Will Fight On For a Republic

ing over the government from the British, and he suggested the formation of a committee, whose members would be chosen from both sides of the controversy, to keep the peace. Work, and not talk, was now required, he added.

Mrs. Thomas J. Clarke moved the re-election of Mr. De Valera as President of the Republic. Liam Mellowes seconded the motion.

Arthur Griffith said the question of the treaty had been constitutionally settled and that there was nothing to prevent its terms being carried out.

After the renomination of De Valera for the presidency, Collins, addressing the Dail, said he would not object to the re-election of President De Valera, but that if Mr. De Valera were re-elected the people would turn out the Dail, as the Dail would be the laughing stock of the world.

Miss Mary MacSwiney was next to speak on the re-election question.

"We must carry on the Republican government until it is established by the Irish people," she said. She opposed the plan of committee proposed by Michael Collins.

George Gavan Duffy demanded that Mr. De Valera tell the Dail what his policy would be if he were re-elected.

"TREATY A VAGUE PROMISE."

Mr. De Valera replied that the republic must continue until the people by an election, disestablished it. It was quite ready during the interval, he said, to help maintain the independence of Ireland.

He said that until the treaty was put into legislative form and worked out the people would not understand what it meant. He called the treaty only "a vague promise."

The Dail must continue, he declared, until the people could decide between the treaty and the Irish Republic. He challenged the supporters of the treaty to hold an election after the treaty was put into operation.

P. J. Hogan said the people had a right to decide immediately, and asked for a speedy election.

William Sears contended that the Dail had ratified the treaty and that the world would so accept it.

John MacKeon and Michael Collins both jumped up at this, shouting:

"It has not been ratified."

"Mr. De Valera said that if he were re-elected no effort of his would be made to obtain a joint cabinet.

"I don't want the office at all," he declared, looking at Griffith and Collins, he added:

"You have a majority with your party-to-your vote. Then your own president."

OPPOSES RE-ELECTION.

Cosgrave, who is Minister of Local Government, said the essence of the position of the treaty's opponents was that they did not want to see the treaty carried out. He submitted that the suggestion for re-election of the President was unconstitutional and the resolution calling for it out of order, the only motion being the Collins motion for a joint committee.

The government of the country, declared Cosgrave, must continue, and nothing would be done to upset the existing status of the Dail and thereby endanger the treaty out of fear of a minority.

Richard Mulcahy, chief of staff of the Republican army, said the Dail must carried on at first without a president of the republic, and if necessary could be called again. He denounced President De Valera's re-election on the ground that he and his associates were unable to co-operate in the work of carrying out the treaty.

MINORITY SHOULD YIELD.

John Milroy said that Mr. De Valera and his colleagues had been defeated, the only constitutional step to take was for the defeated party to surrender authority to the majority side.

Mr. De Valera nodded his head and said, "Hear, hear." Milroy continued Mr. De Valera as having declared he would accept the vote on the treaty as defining the will of the Dail on the issue.

Another deputy who voted for the treaty, Milroy asserted, was absolutely obligated to help carry it out.

Cosgrave declared that it was shameful that President De Valera in resigning should be accused of political treachery.

MINISTRY WITH HIM.

When Mr. De Valera, after the Dail had resumed session at 11:30 o'clock this morning, rose and renewed his resignation, he said the vote on the treaty had left Ireland divided, the republic of which he had been elected president gone. The ministry, he said, of course would go out with him.

He was followed by Michael Collins, who moved that a committee of seven, joint committee of public safety from which he and his friends could form a working committee, be set up with the work.

Before voting to do was for the members to cease talking and begin working, Collins declared. They had to take measures to prevent the English and get the English out of Ireland. This involved, he said, difficulties, which they must face. He and his friends would do "the difficult and dirty work" he said, "but there ought also to be a joint committee for the preservation of public order."

Mr. De Valera, replying, said they must proceed constitutionally. This was a sovereign assembly of the Irish people and should choose its own executive, he declared.

Arthur Griffith said that the Dail, in approving the treaty, had expressed the will of the people. That will would stand, he declared.

PREDICTS RENEWAL OF WAR

By HAYDEN TALBOT,
Universal Service Special Correspondent.
Special Cable Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1921, by Universal Service.)

Dublin, Jan. 8.—"It is all very well to describe De Valera's emotional breakdown last night as dramatic. But in my eyes the thought of the poor Irish people again running to shelter from bullets, again plunged into direst poverty, again thrown under the hopelessness of the future—this is more dramatic."

Richard Croker, New York's old-time Tammany leader, propped in bed in his magnificent home, Glencairn, at Sandyford, made this statement to me today in the course of an exclusive interview for Universal Service.

In view of the alarming reports regarding the condition of Croker's health, it will undoubtedly relieve thousands of his friends in America to learn that his illness is not considered dangerous.

Owing to his advanced age—he is eighty-one years old—an operation is held to be impossible and it is not likely that he will ever leave the bed again.

When I was ushered into the bed room, of the famous old Tammany chieftain, I found him literally buried under newspapers, one of which he lowered to shake hands with me. With his greetings there was a shake of the head and he began dolefully.

"It is true that the Irish people through the action of the Dail come into possession of their own house and are at least free to clean house and set it in order. But how is it going to be done while half of them are determined to destroy everything as fast as it is built up?

"A month or two later he made it clear that he was in the closest touch possible with the leaders of both factions.

"Arthur Griffith," he said, "has been a frequent and honored visitor here, as has also been De Valera. They are both good men and patriots—men of intelligence—and now that they are fighting, what is to become of Ireland?

"De Valera is like Wilson, not only as regards both of them having been school teachers, but in the kind of stubbornness born of extreme egotism. De Valera has done fine work for Ireland, both as a soldier and as an executive, but he has done no more than Griffith. The point is that Ireland too few men and can afford to lose neither of them.

"Unhappily the fighting has gone so far that I am very much afraid that Ireland is going to lose one of them—and that one is the one with the smallest number of gunmen behind him.

"Mr. Hearst has done more for Ireland than any man in America—and nobody in this Dail could be enough to thank him. I know it is not ingratitude—it is simply thoughtlessness.

"But will the American friends of Ireland understand this? Ireland needs money—a great deal of money. Men who talk about a pure Gaelic civilization in which money is not wanted, who say that a rich Ireland would mean the death of Ireland—well, all that I can say is they are madmen.

"The treaty is ratified, to be sure—But what does it amount to if actually all that it means for Ireland is renewed warfare. It would be war more dreadful than any other because this time, unless sanity prevails, Irishmen will be killing Irishmen instead of Englishmen.

"I hope I am wrong, but I know De Valera and I have little hope.

"If my opinion carries any weight in America, let every friend of Ireland in America realize the truth about this tragic situation. They can help now exactly in one way. By the united demand over the cables let them do their utmost to bring home to De Valera and the others of his party the fundamental fact that they alone are responsible for the misery and suffering that their going on with this senseless fight is bound to visit upon the Irish people."

ARBUCKLE AGAIN PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Film Comedian's Second Trial Scheduled to Begin on Wednesday

San Francisco, Jan. 9.—Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle will go on trial for manslaughter as a result of the death of Virginia Rappe on Wednesday. His case was called in Superior Court today and he entered a plea of not guilty to the Grand Jury indictment charging him with responsibility for Miss Rappe's death.

District Attorney Brady and Gavin McNab, chief counsel for the film comedian, each asked that the new trial proceed at the earliest possible date and Judge Louderback announced a case now on trial will be completed in time for the case to open Wednesday.

The round film comedian went through the formality when his case was called before Judge Harold Louderback in Supreme Court because District Attorney Matthew Brady elected to retry Arbuckle on the Grand Jury indictment charging him with responsibility for the death of Virginia Rappe, pretty film actress, instead of the Police Court indictment which the jury disagreed on in the first trial.

HUSBAND IN DIVORCE CASE FORGETS WEDDING DATE

Ashton F. Edwards, testifying in his suit against his wife, Sadie L., in the divorce session of the Suffolk Superior Court today, said he couldn't remember the date of his wedding, but that it was about nine years ago. He charged infidelity and named Arthur Whitten. Mrs. Edwards has filed a cross libel. Edwards testified that on June 19, 1921, at 2 a. m., he and private detectives went to a house on Blackwood street, and found Mrs. Edwards and Whitten asleep in the same room.

Helper and $180 Are Missing After Driver Snatches a Nap

It cost Amos M. Clark of Stoughton street, Dorchester, $180 to take an hour's nap today. Clark, a driver for the Berwick Cake Company, had hired a new helper, who gave the name of Christopher Murray, to start his week's work. Murray worked so busily getting the cake wagon ready for its trip that he and Clark got an hour ahead of their schedule. So Clark guessed he'd retire to the barn in the rear of his home and take a nap. While he was taking the nap, Murray took his depa ture. Clark awoke and looked for the money which had been in his overcoat pocket. That, too, was missing.

Murray is twenty-seven years old, five feet ten inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. He has a light complexion, with smooth face and brown eyes. A pig is tattooed on the back of his neck and there are other tattoo marks on his arms. He wore brown overalls and a gray coat and cap.

MRS. STILLMAN STARTS OFF ON DOG SLED

Travels Down St. Maurice River in Hunt for Witnesses

La Tuque, Que., Jan. 9.—Mrs. Anne U. Stillman plans to go down the St. Maurice river today to Grand Mere, she will stop at Rat river, a settlement of about a dozen houses, interview several prospective witnesses, and make her camp at Grande Anse before night falls.

The dog team will be driven by young Harry Beauvais, eighteen years old, younger brother of Fred, who has returned with his husky from a fur trapping expedition north of the Lake Wayagamack headwaters. Young Harry is an expert musher and says his team can cut at least two hours off the time it will require horse drawn sleighs to make the thirty-five miles to the Stillman camp.

Harry has six powerful Malamute dogs. One of these is a famous trail breaker. Until the team gets on the frozen St. Maurice, the trail break will plow out ahead. The snow is not particularly heavy, less than twenty inches, and the weather does not threaten to be colder than twenty below down the river.

Accordingly, a flying detachment of horse-drawn sleighs will carry the group of Pitt Stillman "Barnstorming" from La Tuque. Fred Beauvais, Philip J. O'Brien and several newspaper men will make the trip. Half of the party will stay at Mrs. Stillman's camp, the remainder at the home of Dr. Desphone in the little village of Grand Anse, five miles from the camp. There is no telephone or telegraph and the party will be cut off from outside communication until Wednesday or Thursday when Mrs. Stillman plans to confer in Montreal with John E. Mack, John F. Brennan and her new chief Canadian lawyer, Aime Geoffrier.

Father Desphone is a strong supporter of Mrs. Stillman. He paid her a visit here on Saturday and told her he was positive the ladder and keyhole witnesses would either recant or their testimony could now easily be disproved.

Yesterday Mrs. Stillman, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Beauvais, Fred's parents, attended a hockey game at the local open air rink. The party sat in a box and were the objects of eager attention on the part of the hundreds present.

WOULD DISBAR LAWYER ULMER IN U. S. COURTS

Disbarment of Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer from practice in the Federal courts is asked in a petition filed today with Judge James M. Morton, Jr., by Assistant United States Attorney Charles P. Curtis, Jr.

The petition follows an investigation made by the Federal district attorney's office after a report had been made to the court by Attorneys Ernest H. Vaughan of Worcester, Jasper Johnson, Clarence F. Barron and Harry C. Sleeper, that Ulmer was unfit to continue as an attorney before the Federal courts.

It is alleged in the petition that for at least five years it has been the practice of Ulmer, in cases in which he has been engaged as counsel, to wilfully impede and subvert the administration of justice by making utterances or causing to be spread on the court records, public and malicious scandalous statements, concerning officials of the court, litigants and others.

Ulmer, the petition recites, was suspended from practice in the federal courts for one year for making, on October 21, 1916, false and scandalous statements in open court.

In a motion filed January 20, 1921, for the discharge of the receiver of the Waban Rose Conservatories, Ulmer is charged with making scandalous and impertinent statements concerning persons who were not parties to the action. In the case of the Anderson Coal Company against the Conservatories he is accused of maliciously attempting to interfere with and obstruct the sale of the Conservatories by making false statements to persons likely to become bidders for the property.

It is also charged that a circular letter Ulmer sent to prospective bidders for the Conservatories contained false statements as to the condition of the property. He is further charged with planning to impede the administration of the property by the court while it was in receivership. In the latter instance Ulmer was fined $300 by the court for contempt.

WANTS NELSON TO TAKE HER BACK AGAIN

Accused Wife, on Stand, Says Old Man's Influence Keeps Them Apart

Mrs. Effie Maud Nelson stirred spectators at the trial of her husband's divorce suit against her in East Cambridge court today by vehement denials of statements and situations previously testified to by ex-boon witnesses, by a passionate appeal for a resumption of the marital relation between herself and Karl Nelson and by her defense of her conduct with Charles Robertson and other sensational testimony.

Her manner was extremely nervous. At moments she fairly screamed her replies to questions by Attorney Kelly, her husband's counsel. At other times she smiled sweetly at the court and at the questioning attorneys.

At times she drummed a nervous tattoo on the rail in front of the witness stand, in its many ways evincing a perturbed state of mind.

She flatly denied that she had ever been interviewed by a Boston news paper, or had ever uttered a word about the divorce case for publication, although interviews have appeared in various papers and the reporters who wrote them were sitting at the press table as she testified.

After she left the stand short testimony was taken from two or three witnesses and the case came to a close. No argument for or against were made by counsel for either side.

KISSED HIM GOOD-BY.

With a show of great emotion Mrs. Nelson declared she had never quarreled with her husband. She denied she had ever struck him, in the East Cambridge courthouse or elsewhere.

"I kissed him good-by when he went away from me," she said, "and when I asked him why he left me he said he had grown tired of me. She added. He hoped I would get a man worthy of me, and who would appreciate me.

"He loves me now," she sobbed. "He sees me often. He sends me flowers. We lunched together recently. I want him back, and he would come back if it were not for the evil influence which an old man has upon him."

Cross-examined by Attorney Kelly she could not identify the old man, but sent the courtroom into a burst of laughter by snapping out: "He wears a red neckile and looks like a crook."

NEVER CARRY GUN.

In answer to Attorney Kelly's questions, she said the last time she met her husband previous to the trial was on November 4. She read the date from a slip of paper, on which she said she had kept a record of her meetings with him. They were always about an hour on a bench in the Public Garden.

"Isn't that the time you carried a gun with you?" asked Kelly.

"No, no—" she screamed—"I never carry a gun—I am afraid of a gun—no, no!"

Questioned about Charles Robertson, she said she knew him only as a good boy. "When he came back from the war," she said, "he was in poor health and I pitied him and felt a friendly interest in him."

She denied she had ever been caught in a compromising position with him, or had ever been in a position with him which would have compromised her if caught.

WOBURN VICTIM.

The trip to New York in the Wilkinson automobile was perfectly innocent, she said. They visited friends the Hohens, and nothing transpired which could be objected to. She was in the car most of Wilkinson's time, in whose machine they made the New York trip, and she replied: "I don't know. I always called him Mr. Wilkinson; I think he lives in Lynnfield."

Asked if she had ever had a young woman rooming at her home with Robertson was with her, she replied in the affirmative.

"Didn't Grace Logue room there while Robertson was living with you?" asked Kelly.

She replied: "She might have—she stayed there a while—I asked her—why?" She said Miss Logue was only in the house a few days and did not live there.

The Grace Logue referred to was the young nurse who recently died of tuberculosis following an operation consequence of which Dr. M. H. Stevens was under police surveillance for a brief time.

MARRIED TWICE.

Mrs. Nelson said her husband had owned fourteen or fifteen automobiles during their married life, all of which had been obtained by pawning her diamonds, or through her earnings as a dressmaker.

In reply to the question, "How many husbands have you had?" she replied, "Two."

"Didn't you go through the marriage ceremony with two men before you married Nelson?" asked Attorney Kelly.

The witness said that she had thought she was married on one occasion, but found out that the man posing as her husband already had a wife. She was divorced from her first husband, she said, and separated from the man who went through a false ceremony with her.

Asked about her feelings toward Robertson were, she replied: "I think he is a very fine boy. He came to see me when I was in my home. That's all there is to that."

PETERS HAS TO BUILD FIRE IN HIS OFFICE

It was cold in the Mayor's office at City Hall today, so cold Mayor Peters had to build the fire in the open fire place. He built it himself, too, and in no time the warm glow made the Mayor's office a cheerful place. Up to a few weeks ago the Mayor and Secretary Canty were kept on the jump, taking care of about 9,000 visitors a day. Today it has dwindled ...out nine.

WILSON SAYS HE IS HAMPERED BY INSIDERS

Prohibition Agent Tells Ministers His Enemies Are Trying to Force Him Out

"Obstacles within the department are hampering a genuine enforcement of the Volstead act," Prohibition Enforcement Officer Harold D. Wilson declared to a meeting of ministers in the Park Street Church, held today under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance of Greater Boston and the Lord's Day League.

"My enemies are hoping to curtail my usefulness and then to say I am not getting results, so I can be put out of my position. I am willing to place before the ministers of Boston in confidence the names of those who were at the Quincy House banquet and who knew there was liquor there."

MINISTERS ENDORSE WILSON.

Resolutions were passed endorsing Wilson's work. These will be sent to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes in Washington.

"There are certain conditions in prohibition enforcement in Massachusetts that must be rectified immediately if we are to have honest and genuine enforcement of the prohibitory amendment in this State," said Agent Wilson. "I am not as much concerned with the obstacles encountered from without the department as I am from those within.

"I am conscious of the fact that those who would deport me to Siberia where my enforcement activities would not be so irksome to certain of the advocates in the Commonwealth, do not dare publicly to request my dismissal, but that secretly they are moving heaven and earth to bring about my dismissal.

"Whatever steps they have taken, mighty effective one, is that of hampering prohibition activities by giving me no facilities with which to prosecute my work.

JAMMED INTO ONE ROOM.

Since the Quincy House raid my entire department has been removed from the Old South Building and jammed into one room about 15 x 20, with only one telephone attached to the switchboard of the State Director. I have had to use the famous Chase Golf Club, where the President plays frequently.

Some of the President's most intimate friends own handsome estates in this vicinity.

The White House is notoriously uncomfortable during the first year of an administration, however. Located upon the lowest lying ground of the district but a short distance from the Potomac River, the humidity is stifling during the Summer months. With a private residence on the highest ground on the northwest section the President could pass his mornings at the executive offices and his afternoons to golf and then work comfortably in the evening at home. It would then be unnecessary for him to seek something besides appeal my efforts to enforce the prohibitory amendment.

"A continuance under present arrangements would be a betrayal of the trust which the Commonwealth and I have endorsed my efforts for impartial enforcement and who expect and deserve such results."

PASTOR TALKS ABOUT KISSING.

Rev. Dr. John L. Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, New York, said:

"I have no objection to a man kissing his wife on Sunday, but I do object to his kissing somebody else's wife. I have encountered many funny types in my meetings, including prize fighters and gamblers, but I think some members of these two classes are altogether more legitimate when I appeared before the New York Legislature to plead for a proper observance of the Lord's Day I found the legislators to be about as sensual a group of men as I ever ever seen."

Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller congratulated the Lord's Day League on its work and added:

"It is the duty of the State to uphold efforts which have for their purpose the preservation of New England vigor and clearness of thought and action.

"America has for a century and a half provided opportunity. It has done so under a democratic government, based on a moral code. One of the cornerstones of that foundation has been a decent observance of the Sabbath."

BOSTON SUES CHELSEA FOR $134,512 BALANCE

The City of Boston has brought suit against the City of Chelsea to recover a balance claimed to be due on the Charles River bridges by those cities. In accordance with a decree of the Supreme Court, Chelsea, on September 6, 1920, paid to Boston the sum of $138, 165.18, on account of construction work done on the Chelsea North, Boston and the Meridian street bridges, and the City of Boston now claims that the further sum of $134,512.87 for maintenance, repairs and interest on account of those bridges.

27 P. C. OF PRISONERS MENTALLY DEFECTIVE

That fully 27 per cent. of all the men and women sentenced to penal institutions are suffering from serious mental defects was declared in a report filed with the Legislature today by the committee of experts headed by Dr. George M. Kline, the State Commissioner of Mental Diseases. It was declared that immediate provision ought to be made to send these mental defectives to some separate institution for treatment.

94 CONVERTED ON COMMON BY REV. CHARLES P. WORTH

Ninety-four persons were converted on Boston Common last Summer to the Christian religion, it was stated today at the business meeting of the Evangelical Association of Greater Boston by the Rev. Charles P. Worth, who has conducted Sunday afternoon meetings on the Common for many Summrs. This is the largest record for many years.

FINED $100 FOR CARRYING A LOADED REVOLVER

Martin Wadeskys, twenty-five years of age, of Bridgewater, charged with carrying a loaded revolver, was fined $100 by Judge Logan in South Boston Court. He was arrested last Saturday night by officers of the City Point station, who noticed a bulging of his pocket, and brushing against him felt the weapon on his person.

Wife Gets 6 Months for Her Apperance as "Gun-Lady"

The latest result of women's suffrage, take it from the antis, is the "gun-lady." Mrs. Donka Sobilnsky of this street, Cambridge, appeared in that role in Judge Sullivan's court today and the judge gave her six months for it.

The testimony showed that Patrolman McGowan of the Hanover street station was strolling down Endicott street last night when he heard a frightful rumpus. Going in he found Mrs. Sobilnsky flourishing a gun and swearing vengeance upon Mr. Sobilnsky. It appears that Mr. Sobilnsky had seen her first, so he wasn't there. Mrs. Sobilnsky said a man had bought her the gun. The police are now looking for him.

HARDINGS MAY BUILD SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

Washington Mansion Too Stifling During Hot Months for Their Comfort

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Emulating the example set by Grover Cleveland, President Harding has under consideration plans for a Summer White House to be built in one of the suburbs of the District of Columbia, it was learned today.

Frank L. Packard, the architect of Columbus, has had several conferences with the President and Mrs. Harding at the White House. According to the President's friends, Packard carried plans for a handsome residence which he submitted to President and Mrs. Harding for their approval. Should the Hardings decide to build the site selection, it is believed, will be in the vicinity of the famous Chevy Chase Golf Club, where the President plays frequently.

Some of the President's most intimate friends own handsome estates in this vicinity.

The White House is notoriously uncomfortable during the first year of an administration, however. Located upon the lowest lying ground of the district but a short distance from the Potomac River, the humidity is stifling during the Summer months. With a private residence on the highest ground on the northwest section the President could pass his mornings at the executive offices and his afternoons to golf and then work comfortably in the evening at home. It would then be unnecessary for him to seek something besides appeal my efforts to enforce the prohibitory amendment.

The government provides a Summer residence for its Presidents at the National Capital. Some here, Mrs. Grover Cleveland discovered that the cost of the upkeep when occupied by the President's family was more than the funds. He refused to use the home at first because of the soldiers and sailors "End Top" in what is known now as "Cleveland Park".

When he built there was no car line running to that section, but shortly afterwards a line was constructed and Cleveland's home was considered one of the most exclusive residential sections of the city. It is said that Cleveland's investment was about $37,000 and he sold for $140,000.

FORMER POLICEMAN ACCUSED OF EXTORTION

Joshua McClain, Colored, who resigned last Friday as a patrolman, was arraigned in the Municipal Court today with Charles Brown, an elevator man in a Massachusetts avenue building. They were charged with conspiracy to extort money from Medal Cushing of No. 15 Winslow street, Roxbury, and obtaining $30 by the threats to cause Cushing's arrest for violation of the liquor laws. Captain Gallivan of Police Station 1 brought a complaint against the two men, both of whom pleaded not guilty.

DIES A SUICIDE AS GRAND JURY GETS CASE

Pittsfield, Jan. 9.—The Berkshire County Grand Jury today was about to consider the case of Frank F. Spurr, held on a forgery charge, when news was received of his death at Middletown, N. Y., from self-inflicted wounds. Spurr shot himself several weeks ago as officers entered the house to place him under arrest. He was alleged to have forged the name of William Bird of East Boston to a check and that he is claimed jumped bail furnished by the man whose name he was alleged to have forged.

TUFTS FILES NOTICE TO FIGHT DISBARMENT

Former District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Somerville today began to fight the disbarment proceedings brought against him by the Middlesex County Bar Association. An appearance for him was filed today with the clerk of the Supreme Court by Attorney Melvin M. Johnson. Tufts was removed from office after a hearing before the Supreme Court. According to the statutes, Tufts had until the end of the month to answer the petition.

PONZI'S CASE WILL BE ARGUED MARCH 6

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Supreme Court of the United States today set for argument March 6 the appealed case of Charles Ponzi, the Boston get-rich-quick promoter, to present his removal from Federal charge and prison to be placed in Massachusetts State courts on trial for conspiracy and fraud.

GARLAND STICKS TO VIEWS, BUT TAKES MONEY

Farmer, Who at First Refused Million, Refuses to Say How He Will Spend It

Middleboro, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—Charles Garland who fourteen months ago refused one million dollars from the estate of his father, the late James A. Garland of Boston, on the ground that it would be inconsistent with his views regarding property, today confirmed a report that he had changed his mind and would accept the legacy.

Hamilton Garland, his youngest brother, has also declined his donation to reject the legacy and will accept. The James Garland, the oldest of the three brothers.

Charles Garland and his wife are living on a farm in North Carver, seven miles from this place. When he was asked for a statement of the reasons for his change in attitude he said he still thought the property system against which he revolted a year ago was wrong but he had come to the conclusion that he ought not to continue to refuse the money and allow it to lie idle. He believed it should be put in circulation.

"I will take the money," he said, "I will not use it for furthering any socialistic idea or for the extension of my farm work. I will use it for my own special purposes, but I do not wish to say at present what those are. I shall live on the old farm here for some time yet, however."

In a statement made at the time of his rejection of the legacy in November, 1920, Charles Garland said: "I refuse to accept the money because it is built upon a system which has caused thousands while hundreds are stuffed themselves. It is a system that offers me a million dollars." He added that he considered the system of working for money all wrong and that he believed people should work to be of service to some one else. He said today that he still held that men should not work for money alone. He does not to say how much his share of the legacy would amount to at the present time.

Hamilton Garland, who has been married within a year, is occupying the old Tudor farm not far from the home of his brother James. He could not be reached for a statement today.

It is the wife of James Garland who is at the hospital in Taunton, and not Mrs. Hamilton Garland, as was reported.

Wife Induced Garland to Accept Legacy, Trustee Says

New York, Jan. 9.—Charles Garland, young New England idealist, who has rejected the paternal legacy of more than a million dollars, which he spurned a year ago, has led to change his views by the persuasions of his wife and consideration of their one-year-old daughter, This view was expressed today by Frederick D. Tudor, trustee of the father's estate.

There remains to be distributed by the trustees of the estate of the three of the five equal shares bequeathed by James A. Garland, late Wall Street banker, of which Charles is one, next to Miss Hope Garland, who is to receive it on reaching the age of twenty. Tudor estimated her share would then be worth $2,000,000.

Under the trusteeship, he added, the brothers' shares had grown from $750,000 each to more than double that value.

MEMORIAL WINDOW ON VIEW AT ART MUSEUM

There is on view at the Museum of Fine Arts in the trustees' room, until next Sunday, a stained glass window made for Mrs. O. B. Brown of Berlin, N. H., to be placed in the Universalist church of Sherbrooke, Quebec, in memory of her son, Montague Brown. The window consists of three lights, the centre one representing "The Sower," and the two side lights carrying out the same idea in a conventional way, but with a judicious use of browns. The features of the figures are well studied, the whole of the work, save the mechanical part, was carried out by Miss Mary Hamilton Dyer, who has also designed the design, painted the cartoon, but also assisted in the glass, a very unusual thing in this country.

GARAGE PERMIT NEAR CRIPPLES' SCHOOL REFUSED

The opposition to the erection of a garage of 150-car capacity next to the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children on St. Botolph street, Back Bay, won the fight today, when the street commissioners gave the petitioners leave to withdraw the request for a permit to build. Charges were made that if the building was built it would perhaps be the means of closing the school, that it was a menace to the children, and would make it all but impossible to sell the property for anything but a school.

JEWISH CHARITY DRIVE TO LAST TEN DAYS

A drive for a $400,000 fund for the Federated Jewish Charities is on and will last for ten days. The objective has a $45,000 deficit to be made up, it developed at the meeting in charge of Boston Y. M. H. A. building in Roxbury, where the campaign was started and the balance of the $400,000 will be used to expand the work of the charities and extend the benefits of the Jewish hospitals, educational and recreational institutions. Louis E. Kirstein is in charge of the drive, and will be assisted by Nathan Sachs, Jonah G. Kaplan, Sidney S. Cohen, Louis Levin, Leon Straus, Carl Dreyfus, Ferdinand Straus, Maurice B. Hexter and E. J. Brody.

POINT IS WON FOR DEFENSE AS JUDGE UPHOLDS FEENEY

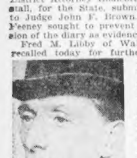
Attorney John P. Feeney of counsel for the defence concluded his cross-examinat on of the witness, and won a point for his client by preventing the government from putting in evidence as to a conversation between Libby and Chief of Police Pollard of Wakefield.

Judge John F. Brown, presiding, overruled for the present a point of law raised by District Attorney Endicott P. Saltonstall, who claimed Feeney had placed the witness in a false light.

BATTLE OVER DIARY.

A stubborn battle over the diary of Patrolman Preston began today. Attorney John P. Feeney, for Loud, and District Attorney Endicott P. Saltonstall, for the State, submitted briefs to Judge John F. Brown. Attorney Feeney sought to prevent the admission of the diary as evidence.

Fred M. Libby of Wakefield was recalled today for further cross-examination by Attorney Feeney.



FREDERICK LIBBY

Mrs. Loud, her son Dick and two men friends of Loud greeted him when court opened.

Libby was immediately called to the stand.

Q.—Did you notice if there was a moon that night? A.—There was no moon.

H.—How far was it from where you were to where you first saw the forms of two people? About 140 feet.

Q.—When you got in Beebe's lane how far did you go? A.—Perhaps forty to fifty feet.

Q.—How long did you remain in Beebe's lane? A.—Only the time it took to go in and get back.

Q.—When you saw the car at a standstill and only one of the headlights on, that car was at the head of Beebe's line? A.—Yes.

Q.—At no time did you ever see that car back up? A.—No.

Q.—When you just heard the voices did they appear to come from the automobile. A.—No, sir.

DIRECTION OF VOICES.

Q.—From what direction did the voices come? A.—From the direction where I found the body.

Q.—At no time did you come out of Beebe's lane until the body was discovered? A.—That's right.

Q.—At no time did you make a search of the place from where you saw those two forms appear until after the body had been discovered? A.—That's right.

Q.—Do you know if the engine was in motion before the car started? A.—I don't know.

Q. Did not another car come by there? A.—There were many cars that went by.

Libby said he was twice alone at the scene of the crime. The first time was when the car he saw near Beebe's lane was driven rapidly away after two figures had run to it and jumped in. The second time was when another car drove up, paused, and then went away.

Libby finally fixed the number of cars that passed as three or four. He said that some of the cars refused to stop when he signalled to them.

ILLUSTRATES THREE SHOTS.

"I wish, Mr. Witness, you would again illustrate the sounds you heard that night," said Mr. Feeney. Mr. Libby buttoned his coat and then struck his hands together sharply. "The sounds were made in this tempo—one—one—two."

Feeney asked him to illustrate it again on the board on the witness stand, handing him a glass inkwell cover to make the noise with. Again Mr. Libby illustrated the three shots. So hard did he rap that he broke the inkwell cover and the pieces fell on the floor.

Feeney asked Judge Sturtevant, his associate, to lend him his pocket knife. As Judge Sturtevant was getting his knife, a court officer solved the problem by handing the witness a pencil.

Again Libby rapped out his illustration of the three shots he heard that night. Mr. Feeney took the pencil and he, too, repeated the sounds as Libby had illustrated them.

After the gavel banging has ceased, Feeney stated that his cross-examination of Libby was over.

The jurymen were then sent to their rooms as the district attorney argued a point of law, raised in another criminal case relative to the admission of certain evidence.

ASKS DISCLAIMER.

The district attorney stated that he wanted to "save Mr. Feeney disclaimer before the jury that he was not going to argue before the jury that Libby did not see what he had testified in court that he saw that night. The district attorney claimed Feeney sought to give the impression to the jury that Libby could not have seen what he said he saw and had testified to.

He asked that Mr. Feeney make this disclaimer to the jury, or that the court allow him to ask Libby what he said to Chief Pollard when the latter came to the scene that night.

The district attorney urged his point strongly and said that Libby, before he knew of Loud and his car, had given the first two numbers, "26 —" to Chief Pollard and should be allowed to show this in order to controvert the possible argument by counsel for the defence that Libby might have imagined what he testified to.

Mr. Feeney said that he had got suggestion that the story of Libby's was a recent fabrication.

"I say to the court, have I attacked the motives of Mr. Libby? And I do object to any other testimony as to what he said," said Mr. Feeney.

FEENEY STATES POSITION.

Saltonstall said to the jurists it a gross injustice to the government's case if he were not allowed to show that Libby told the story that Libby had told from first to last.

"When I get up in the court that, first, I do not attack his motives and, second, when I say that I do not consider his story to be a recent fabrication, I feel that I have said enough," said Mr. Feeney.

Judge Brown said he would rule out the question sought by the government for the present.

After a recess, Saltonstall once more opened up on the point when the court had just overruled him.

"Mr. Libby did not know Loud nor the number of his car, and, if necessary, I will put him in and have him say so," said the district attorney.

Feeney ended the discussion by saying he was not going to argue what the district attorney feared.

The district attorney raised an interesting point in psychology. He said that it was a well known fact that people may see a thing happen, then read some more about it and then imagine they saw more than they did.

LIBBY IS RECALLED.

Saltonsall recalled Libby to the stand.

"Were you personally acquainted with Mr. Loud?" he asked Libby.

"I was not."

Libby said the reason he turned into the Forest after hearing the pistol shots was because he wanted to search the field.

The district attorney recalled to the witness the testimony as to the screams of a woman which Libby had said he said was "a woman in pain," which he later said might have been a small boy.

Libby said: "I heard a sound as if made by a living creatures in pain."

The district attorney asked Libby to illustrate the sound, by his voice, he heard that night.

Mr. Feeney objected.

"Can you imitate this sound?" asked Mr. Saltonstall.

Mr. Feeney objected and the court ruled that, if the witness could do this with his own voice, he might do so.

"Will you illustrate how it sounded?"

Mr. Libby tried to do so. "That isn't the way it sounded," he said.

"Try it again," said Mr. Saltonstall. The witness did not do so.

Feeney then asked Libby to again make this sound. Libby said he'd like a drink of water and Feeney got it for him.

IMITATES SOUND.

After the drink, Libby again gave the sounds, this time for the defence. "I guess that's all," said Mr. Feeney.

John L. Gilman of No. 6 Vine street, Reading, a Boston & Maine Railroad conductor for thirty-six years, was the next witness.

"Does your name appear on this sheet?" asked the district attorney.

JOHN L. GILMAN

The witness said it did. He stated that the train on the night of April 9 for left Wakefield Centre on time and reached Lowell street at 9.12. The railroad station is but 100 yards from the scene of the murder.

Bertram Dearborn testified that Margaret Day, Miss Gladys Hunt and Douglas Day were riding with him the night of April 9, last, he related. He said he was stopped by a man. He backed up to a telegraph pole on Lowell street and saw the body of the dead officer. He said the officer's flash light was lighted. Preston was lying on his right side with his feet toward the side of the road.

Q.—After the man stopped you, and you had some conversation with the man who stopped you what happened next? A.—He ran toward the field.

Q.—When did you report what you had seen? A.—To Chief Pollard at the Wakefield station. We then returned to the scene of the murder.

Have a conversation? A.—Yes.

"I object," said Attorney Feeney.

Q.—Was the dead officer's body in the same position as you first saw it? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was the officer's hat on? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you hear Mr. Libby tell Chief Pollard what he saw?

"I object," thundered Feeney.

Judge Brown said it could be described.

"Did you hear Mr. Libby describe what he heard?

"I object," said Feeney.

CONFERENCE AT BENCH.

Then followed a conference at the bench of counsel and Feeney.

Q.—Have you and definite means of establishing the exact time you were stopped on Lowell street? A.—We were in Melrose at 9 o'clock.

Q.—As you came along Lowell street did you pass anyone on foot or in machines? A.—We passed two machines going toward the lake.

Q.—Do you remember how far off one side the dead officer's body lay?

Attorney Feeney took the witness.

Q.—So you have no definite recollection of what cars you passed from the corner of Main and Lowell streets? A.—I remember two cars.

PASSED TWO CARS.

Q.—So you are certain you passed two cars? A.—Yes.

"I wonder what it is that fixes that so definitely in your head," said Feeney, leaning on the railing.

Q.—You are certain that the car you were riding in that night was not a Ford car? A.—Yes.

Q.—You state then that it was a five-passenger, 1920 Dodge touring car? A.—Yes.

Q.—Any side curtains? A.—Yes.

Q.—By any possibility, Mr. Witness, could you have been driving any other car that night? A.—No.

Q.—You are sure now? A.—No, I sold it July last.

Q.—Is that similar to the flashlight you saw on the night of the murder thanding witness a flashlight)? It looks like the one you saw clutched in the officer's hand that night? A.—Yes.

Q.—How close were you to the body? A.—About three feet.

"That's all, sir," said Feeney to witness. The flashlight of the dead officer is now an exhibit 7.

MARGARET DAY

"While the jury is looking at the flashlight, will you please call Miss Day?"

Miss Margaret Day of Medford was the first woman witness of the trial. A flurry went through the courtroom. She was attired in a plain tailored suit and spoke in tones barely audible to the jury.

After she said she was out riding with Dearborn and others April 9 last, the district attorney asked her if she saw the body. The car backed up near the telegraph pole.

She said she didn't see the body until later at the Wakefield police station. She was sitting in the front seat, she said. She thought Dearborn got out of the car at the scene of the murder.

Q.—Did you, after backing, see the dead officer? A.—No.

Q.—Did you see the body after you returned from the police station? A.—Yes.

gave substantially the same testimony as the previous three witnesses. He said the body was laying with head across the road.

Here Attorney Feeney took the witness. The witness said both he and Dearborn got out of the car.

Here District Attorney Saltonstall asked witness if the officer's hat was on. "It was," replied the witness.

At this point the court took a brief adjournment.

AFTERNOON SESSION LATE.

Court was late in coming in for the afternoon session. Another large crowd of curious surrounded the courthouse, stormed up the first floor and waited patiently to be told they would be one of the "lucky ones."

He said he was out riding with his wife and a young girl, a next door neighbor, on the night of April 9, and left Wakefield square between 9.01 and 9.07.

Q.—Did you seen Mr. Preston's body? A.—Yes.

The witness said he met a man with a light in his hand on Lowell street, near Beebe's lane.

Q.—Witness, in order to reach this dead body, i you have to go forward or turn back? A.—I went forward about nine feet.

RECOGNIZES BODY.

Q.—Did you recognize the body? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was it? A.—Jim Preston.

Q.—How was the body lying? A.—His feet were pointing toward the state wall.

Q.—Did you at any time have conversation with the man who stopped you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Any women with you see the body? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know whether there was a pile of sand near where the body lay? A.—No.

Q.—Did you have a conversation with the man who stopped you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he tell you what he saw? A.—Yes.

"I object," snapped Feeney.

The witness said he went to the Wakefield police station.

Q.—Did you go back to the scene? A.—Yes. Joe Preston went back to the scene with me. The ladies did not go back with me; the body was in the same position.

Q.—Was the officer's hat off or on? A.—It was on.

Q.—Did you see anyone on ethere with the exception of the dead man and the man who stopped you? A.—No.

Attorney Feeney then took Classon to map on wall where witness explained the route covered by him that night.

Charles Ehl, a meat cutter, of No. 26 Water street, Wakefield, was the next witness.

"Mr. Witness, please keep your voice up so we can all hear," urged Attorney Feeney.

Q.—Were you outside your store on the evening of April 9, last? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you se an auto turn in From Vernon street? A.—res.

Q.—What time? A.—Between 9:14 and 9:30.

Q.Was it going fast? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you catch the number? A.—No.

"That's all," said Saltonstall.

17TH WITNESS CALLED.

Feeney did not care to cross-examine.

Henry L. Ehl, a brother, and the fifteenth witness, next took the stand. He said he was in the back seat of his own car on Water street the night of the murder.

Q.—Did you see an auto come around the corner? A.—Yes. I saw a Ford coming, and it almost hit us.

Q.—What kind of car? A.—A Ford sedan.

Q.—Did you recognize any of the occupants? A.—No.

Q.—Did you fix the time? A.—About 9:20.

One-fourth of the government's witnesses have now been called.

Joseph Ruth, of No. 2 Butler avenue, Wakefield, a parcel boy, said he was sitting in the Ehl brothers' auto the night of the murder.

Q.—Tell us what you saw. A.—I was sitting in the machine. I saw a Ford sedan coming toward me at a rap'd pace. It almost hit us. It came within four or five feet.

Q.—Could you tell who was in it? A.—I could make out two persons, but I couldn't say whether it was a man or a woman or two men and two women. This happened between 9:10 and 9:20.

BRAKEMAN IS WITNESS.

Edward Willard of Ipswich, a Boston & Maine brakeman, said he was driving an open auto on evening of April 9 last.

Q.—Did your auto turn the corner of Vernon street that night? A.—Yes.

Q.—About what time? A.—Between 9:20 and 9:25.

Q.—Was it traveling fast? A.—Yes.

Q.—How close did it come to you? A.—About three feet.

Q.—Were your headlights on? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see any people in the Ford sedan? A.—Yes.

LIMIT ON AIRCRAFT GIVEN UP BY POWERS

Washington, Jan. 9.—The five great powers of the Washington conference definitely decided today not to attempt any limitation of aircraft. The report of the subcommittee, recommending that nothing be done at this conference because the development of military and naval craft was so closely linked with the development of commercial aviation, was adopted by the powers.

BOSTON MEN WANTED FOR ARMY RECRUITS

Recruiting to fill 100 vacancies in the Coast Artillery Corps at Fort Terry, near New London, Ct., was today begun at the army base, South Boston, with Major William S. Fulton in charge. The garrison at Fort Terry is largely composed of men recently transferred from Forts Strong and Warren in Boston Harbor, and Major Fulton is anxious to get as many Boston recruits as possible, in line with the policy of having men from New England ready to defend the New England coast.

URGES FRIENDS OF IRELAND TO AWAIT VERDICT OF ERIN

William H. O'Brien, who is a close friend of President De Valera and who has been most active in this country in the fight for Irish liberty, today issued this statement:

"This is a very vital moment in the life of Ireland. Every sincere lover of the Old Land will refrain from any expression of opinion at this time and await the decision of the Irish people, which must be our decision. On both sides in Ireland at the moment we find the men who have faced English bullets and English judges with smiles on their faces, ready to give up their lives for the freedom of their race, and any man in America who will inject himself into the fight at this time is an enemy of Ireland. Again I say, let's all wait until the Irish people have spoken."

TIDE DRIVES SCHOONER SARAH EATON ON ROCKS

Eastport, Me., Jan. 9.—The two-masted schooner Sarah Eaton, Capt. Hibbard, is fast on the rocks at Campobello Island, N. B. today, according to word reaching here. The crew of five is safe. The Sarah Eaton is carrying a cargo of 400 tons of hard coal and was bound from New York to Calais, Me. She was passing through the Lubec Narrows when the tide carried her onto the rocks. An attempt to float the vessel will be made today by the Coast Guard Steamer Ossipee. The schooner was built in Calais in 1875.

SNOWLESS "JANUARY THAW" IS FORECAST

Mild weather for several days is in prospect for Boston, Forecaster Smith said today. The temperature will be about like that of a "January thaw," only there isn't any snow to thaw.

TWO WOMEN WOUNDED IN BELFAST RIOTING

Belfast, Ire., Jan. 9.—Two women, a policeman and a civilian were wounded during disorders of the past twenty-four hours. There was considerable shooting and a police lorry was bombed during the night.

The Waldorf Way

A Letter

Dear Mother—

Once you thought that I devoured too much Apple Pie. You made us three or four each week;

Now, that's my business, so to speak.

And I can hear Dad say, "By Gum!"

And you, "My Stars!" or else, "I swum!"

One hundred thousand folks each day

We cook for in the Waldorf way.

How many pies do you think we bake?

Just apple pies, like the ones you make?

Each month with this problem the Waldorf grapples,

And uses—three hundred thousand apples!

In the early Fall they are juicy, Gravenstein, A-1 quality. That's the kind of apples you will find sliced and tucked away under the flaky crust of a Waldorf Apple Pie.

Then come the sturdy Baldwins with their red and green skins packed full of juicy flavor born of mellow sunshine and the tang of Autumn winds to New England orchards. We're saving you now Waldorf apple pie made of these Baldwins—and will be serving them until next Spring, when all the other less hardy apples —millions of them—have done their delicious duty.

I envy the man, who does the Waldorf marketing for apples. He buys apples by the "orchard." He gave up the old "bushel and barrel" idea long ago. Every Fall he goes visiting. When he finds a whackin' good orchard, he buys all the Grade-A apples in it and leaves the rest.

The Waldorf "no-substitute" rule extends even to pie-apples. If you stop and think you'll see why it pays. The best apples keep longest.

A China Egg Looks Like a Dollar a Dozen—to a Hen—

If any one traditional Waldorf standard of excellence is maintained more faithfully than the others, it is our uncompromising refusal to use food substitutes.

Waldorf System Incorporated never uses substitutes for cow's milk and cream, for fresh-tested hen's eggs, for Nature's own fruit in pies, jellies, and marmalades, or for anything else.

"Whole" milk and "shell" eggs are used in Waldorf cooking, even though milk powder and egg powder are acknowledged to be pure, wholesome, more convenient, and much cheaper.

That is because Waldorf System Incorporated adheres as closely as possible to home-cooking methods. And because of the vast size of Waldorf operations, the Waldorf System is able to apply those home-cooking methods with scientific precision, uniformity, and economy which would be unattainable in the kitchen of the average home.

You may be sure when you go to a Waldorf Lunch that everything on the bill-of-fare has been made of fine, fresh materials, skilfully prepared.

9½-Foot Tiger Shot by Prince

Bombay, Jan. 8.—The Prince of Wales shot his first tiger while on a hunt in Nepal Terai. The animal measured nine feet six inches from nose to end of tail.

RED PEPPER HEAT ENDS RHEUMATISM

Red Pepper Rub takes the "ouch" from sore, stiff, aching joints. It cannot hurt you, and it certainly stops that old rheumatism torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any good druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.—Advertisement.

EDISON JUGGLES BOOKS, THE CITY ATTORNEY SAYS

People of Boston Pay Thousands in Dividends on "Plant Account"

How countless small items, in the whole aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars, are manipulated on the books of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company in such a way as to compel the people of Greater Boston ti pay dividends upon them year after year was exposed by Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill of the city of Boston at the hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities today.

Mr. Hill showed how the Edison people moved one of their telephones from one room to another, charged $30 as the expense of doing it and, instead of accounting for the $30 as an ordinary operating expense, to be paid out of the annual revenue of the company, charged it up to the "plant account," thereby making a fixed sum on which the people would be asked to pay dividends every year.

The Edison spent $19.53 for removing a pulley and charged that amount into the "plant account," thereby making it a permanent liability. The sum of $45 was charged for sowing grass seed on land that was to be used for storing coal. The Edison changed the lettering on one of its office doors and charged $5.30 into the "plant account."

$35,000 IN ONE YEAR.

A tenement on East First street was repaired for use of one of its employes and the sum of $700 was written into the "plant account."

Mr. Hill said he was not ready yet to make an estimate of the total of all these amounts, but he had Samuel H. Mildram, one of the city's experts, read a group of them which in one year alone amounted to $35,000.

"These figures seem ridiculously small," said Mr. Hill, "but in the aggregate they amount to a vast sum of money and the city of Boston can see no reason why they should be charged into an account which is used as a basis for making rates that the people of Boston have to pay to the Edison for electricity."

When the hearing was resumed today, on the joint petition of the Boston American and the city of Boston to force down the electric rates for benefit of all the consumers, Attorney Louise Palais announced that the Boston American was ready to proceed with its investigation of Charles L. Edgar, the president of the company.

The Boston American has prepared voluminous table of rates, showing that the people of Boston are compelled to pay more for electricity than the people of any other large city in the country and has requested that the president of the Edison explains just why it is that the rates are higher here than elsewhere.

ATTORNEY ASKS DELAY.

But the attorney for the company, F. Manley Ives, said that Mr. Edgar is ill and may not be able to attend another hearing for at least two weeks. Mr. Wallis, an expert of the company, who is said to have given some attention to these important matters, was also reported ill at present today. Mr. Ives said.

Chairman Attwill of the department said there must be no further delays in this hearing.

Attorney Palais said the Boston American was ready and that its investigation of the company officials will require several days of public hearings. Mr. Ives then promised that Mr. Wallis will be ready to go on the stand Wednesday.

Mildram testified that the coal-handling property of the Edison on Third street is charged into the plant account for an amount in excess of $700,000, despite the fact that the property is leased to C. H. Sprague & Co. Mr. Hill will contend, he said, that the people should not be required to pay dividends on this large amount of property from which the Edison derives an additional income by letting it to the Sprague company.

Fresh From Paris

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

PARIS, France.

THE sleek darkness of loutre hangs in an unbroken line from neck to hem to make a cape that can afford to be of strikingly plain design. The round collar, which is of the loutre, is cut separately and applied with gathered fulness, and one merely folds oneself up in the skins, there being neither slits nor sleeves. In the sketch this wrap is worn over a fine cloth of gray Kasha cloth that has its front of bodice, girdle, sleeves and hem enlivened with peasant embroidery in gay colors outlined in black. The V-shaped bit that fills the neck is of black satin.

A VERY small girl may be very smart in a coat of astrakhan buttoned with round balls of astrakhan and having a tight collar and a muff of sealskin. The little coat uses the ways of the big one—a bloused bodice, a narrow belt buckled in silver—a bell sleeve, to make its mark on the Bois.

OBJECT TO ERECTION OF TWO GARAGES IN BOSTON

Opposition to the proposed construction of two garages in Boston was made today before the street commissioners. The petition of B. Kooshur, for a three-car garage at No. 1040 Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, was objected to by Samuel Weinberg, who declared that Kooshur does not live there but simply desires the permit for business reasons. Florence K. Barry, petitioned for a public garage at No. 161 London street, East Boston, of thirty-five car capacity. Jerome A. Petitti, who represented objectors, claimed the garage would be a nuisance. The commissioners took under advisement the two petitions.

TROWBRIDGE IS GIVEN DIVORCE FOR CRUELTY

Broker Says His Wife Threw Coffee and Oatmeal That Landed in His Face

Almarin Trowbridge, a broker in textile securities, who lives on Winslow road, Winchester, was granted a divorce in the Superior Court at East Cambridge today on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. His wife, Belle Florence Leighton Trowbridge, did not appear to contest the suit.

Sensational testimony on other grounds which Trowbridge was expected to offer did not materialize. Following the granting of the decree, counsel from Trowbridge announced it was expected that arrangements regarding alimony would be made at a meeting of counsel for both parties.

Trowbridge testified he was married in 1904. His wife, he said, "had a wicked temper" and threw coffee and oatmeal in his face several times and struck him almost weekly.

Mrs. Trowbridge, he said, cursed and swore when he refused to run errands for her.

Several servants gave testimony in support of frowbridge. They included Stephen Tornato, chauffeur, and Mrs. Mary Connors, Mrs. Temple and Miss Josephine E. Donahue. Mrs. Trowbridge, they said, threw coffee, a soft-boiled egg and oatmeal at her husband and scratched his face.

Mrs. Ella O. Tobey, an aged woman, great aunt of Mr. Trowbridge, testified that she saw Mrs. Trowbridge scratch her husband and heard her say, "I'll get him."

RESTAURANT IS CAPTURED BY GUNMEN

Cambridge Lunchroom Invaded By Five Men Who Retreat After Employes' Threat

Five young men entered the Walton restaurant opposite the Tech building on Massachusetts avenue in Cambridge today, took possession of the place after a spectacular display of revolvers, and left only when restaurant employes, barricaded in the kitchen, threatened to pour hot fat down a plate and quiver barrage.

Police are looking for the five who figured in the gun-play and believe arrests will be made shortly.

The number of the automobile in which the quintet drove away is in the possession of the authorities.

What motives impelled the men, restaurant employes are, unable to guess, unless it was too much liquor. All were "under the influence."

According to Ernest Hubbard, the counterman, the five became abusive when he started to serve them and he finally refused to serve them at all.

Thereupon one of the men stuck a revolver under his nose. Edward Eaton, a porter, came to his rescue, when there was a general showing of automatics and the barrel of one was shoved into his stomach.

The kitchen attendants were preparing for an attack via the porthole through which orders are passed, and are usually served, when the five lost their combined nerve and left. Counterman Hubbard got the number of their car.

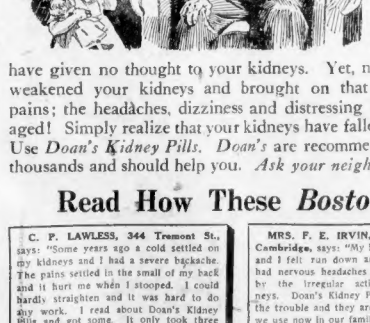
Back Achy? Feel "All Played Out?"



IS that bad back wearing you out? Are you tired, lame and achy in the morning; tortured all day long with nagging backache and sharp, stabbing pains? Evening find you weak, worn-out and discouraged? Surely, you don't want to go on from day to day enduring such needless suffering! So why not find out the cause and correct it? Chances are you have given no thought to your kidneys. Yet, more than likely a cold, a chill, or a strain has weakened your kidneys and brought on that constant backache; those sharp, rheumatic pains; the headaches, dizziness and distressing bladder irregularities. But don't be discouraged! Simply realize that your kidneys have fallen behind, and give them the help they need. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's are recommended for just such troubles. They have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Boston Folks Found Relief:

C. P. LAWLESS, 344 Tremont St., says: "Some years ago a cold settled on my kidneys and I had a severe backache. The pains settled in the small of my back and it hurt me when I stooped. I could hardly straighten and it was hard to do any work. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and got some. It only took three boxes to relieve all this trouble and I have not had a return of it."

MRS. F. E. IRVIN, 79 Auburn St., Cambridge, says: "My kidneys were weak and I felt run down and languid. I also had nervous headaches and was annoyed by the irregular action of my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills soon removed the trouble and they are the only remedy we use now in our family for kidney complaints. I always highly recommend Doan's."

DENNIS O'CONNELL, 184 Sumner St., E. Boston, says: "The strain from heavy lifting put my kidneys in bad condition. When I bent I could hardly straighten again because of the sharp pains that shot through my kidneys. A fellow workman told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. It took only a couple boxes to remove the pains from my back and kidneys and I have not needed to use a kidney remedy of any kind since."

STAR OF 'IRENE' WORRIES OVER GETTING FAT

Patti Harrold Finds It Hard to Diet While She Has Cash Enough to Live Well

By FRED J. McISAAC, Dramatic Editor

"Do you think my legs are too fat?" asked Patti Harrold anxiously.

We sat in the parlor of the Westminster. The leading woman of "Irene" was sitting on the edge of a big, overstuffed chair ardently holding in place a short skirt which persisted in creeping above her knees.

The limbs referred to were in evidence. They filled a pair of silk stockings rather profusely, but to say they were fat would be to exaggerate. So I reassured Miss Harrold.

"That's the one thing I'm worried about," said the lady, wagging her bobbed and frizzled head sagaciously. "I'd get fat in a minute if I let myself go. It's terrible to be earning money enough to buy plenty to eat, and then have to go without, isn't it?"

LEADING WOMAN A YEAR.

"How old are you anyway?" I demanded.

"Just twenty, sir."

"And how long have you been leading woman of 'Irene'?"

"Nearly a year, sir."

"Miss Harrold, I am older than you, but I haven't long white whiskers, and you don't have to say sir to me."

"All right, sir."

"Look here. You're a successful actress in a big success. You ought to live up to the part. You don't have to be respectful to everybody you meet."

Miss Harrold's eyes grew round.

"Oh, I don't think anything about that," she said. "I can't put on airs. And I always say sir to my elders and superiors."

Miss Harrold took a little handkerchief, which she began to roll into a ball, and tie into knots.

JUST A NICE KID.

This took both hands so the skirt climbed over the knee. Then she had to drop the handkerchief and pull it down and hold it in place with both hands. While she was doing it I thought of leading ladies I had met with their secretaries and their superb negligees and their airs and ostentations and I liked Patti Harrold for being just a nice kid.

The lady whose job in "Irene," Edith Day, she took, wasn't much older than Patti, but she went to London and flirted with the entire British aristocracy and got married and divorced and married again and all sorts of things. And here was her successor who would be absolutely delighted if somebody should give her a sundrop.

"Your father is Orville Harrold, the tenor, isn't he?"

"Yep," said Patti. "Isn't Pop grand? If I could only sing like he does."

"That would be funny. He's a tenor."

"Well, you know what I mean. Pop says he's going to get me into grand opera some day when I get fat enough, but I think I'll stay thin and stick to musical comedy."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Boston Girls Attend New York Debutante Parties

By BETTY ALDEN.

If there has been somewhat of a lull these last few weeks in the way of entertainments among the smart set in Boston, there has been no dearth of such affairs in Gotham. On the contrary, the holidays seemed to speed up even more the whirlwind of gayety which revolves about the socially elect.

I note that several Bostonians have made their way to New York and other cities to partake in the various festivities, and among this group is Miss Rosamond Johnson of Beacon street, who went on to New York, where she was among the guests at the dinner party which Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Chisolm gave at their home on West Tenth street in honor of Miss Anne Burr, a debutante. Afterward, Mr. and Mrs. Chisolm took their guests to see "The O'Brien Girl," and then to the second of this season's Junior Assemblies which was held at the Ritz-Carlton.

Naturally, numerous dinners preceded the dance, which ranks importantly among the many affairs of Gotham, and a goodly number who attended it went first to the opera or theatre, as did Miss Johnson's hosts and their guests.

One of the largest dinners preceding the assembly was given by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Higginson Cabot at the Colony Club for their debutante daughter, Miss Maud Bonner Cabot, who is related to the Boston family of that name. Nor did the Hub lack representation at this affair, for Miss Eleanor Winslow of Boston was among the guests, the latter including scene of the most widely feted buds of Manhattan. Miss Cabot had the distinction of being recorded as "among those present" at the ultra-exclusive presentation ball which the Harry Payne Whitneys gave at their Fifth avenue home for Miss Barbara Whitney, so that the latter was present at the dinner given for Miss Cabot preceding the assembly. A few of the other guests were the Misses Adele Sloane Hammond, Frances Elwood, Joan Whitney, Phyllis and Priscilla Baldwin, Marion de Rham, Dorothy Gardiner and Anita Damrosch.

The annual Charity Ball, which was held last week at Providence, managed most successfully to usurp the entire attention of the smart set of "Little Rhody's" capital. The usual numerous dinner parties preceded the affair, one of the most important being given for sixty young people by Mrs. Isaac B. Merriman at the Agawam Hunt. Mrs. Townsend Morgan came from New York for the event as the guest of the Merriman's, while Kenneth Shaw Safe brought a contingent of Harvard men from Cambridge, who were entertained by young Safe's mother, Mrs. T. Shaw Safe.

Apropos of Bostonians being dined—if not wined—in other cities, Miss Helen Bennett of Beacon street is being right royally entertained as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Tom Cottman, (Margaret Bennett) at the latter's home in Baltimore.

It is generally known that the former Margaret Bennett holds a position of no little power in the social world of the Oriole City, and she is naturally well able to offer her visiting sister interesting entertainment.

At the first meeting of the Theatre Club held recently at the Belvedere, Mrs. Cottman gave a delightful party, including her sister among the guests. The one-time Margaret Cottman is chairman of the Theatre Club, a rather recent organization of Baltimore, which includes members of the most fashionable strata of the Monument City's society folk.

Both Helen Bennett and Mrs. Cottman, as well as a third sister, Mrs. Edward Cunningham (Elizabeth Bennett) are too well known among Boston's socially elect to require much comment. Helen, especially, has rather distinguished herself for her clever impersonations of leading "men" in various of the shows given by the Vincent Club, of which Miss Bennett has always been an outstanding member. She did not return to Boston until well into the Fall, after a long season spent, as usual, at York Harbor, Me. I understand that at the Maine resort Miss Bennett was as devoted as ever to golf, and was constantly on the links.

ENTERTAINED IN NEW YORK

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and County

Henry de Ford, William de Ford and James W. Hubbard were among the Bostonians who sailed Saturday afternoon aboard the new steamship Muzarro of the Munson Line. This is the first voyage of the steamer, which is beginning a new service between New York and Nassau and Cuba.

Maxwell Norman of Boston, who is sojourning at Palm Beach, gave a dinner party during the week-end for Harold S. Vanderbilt and the latter's house guests, including Albert Hoyt and Amory Coolidge of Boston. Mr. Vanderbilt and his guests left Palm Beach last night on Mr. Vanderbilt's private car, bound for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Morehead Patterson (Elsie Parsons) have returned to their home in Cambridge after spending the holidays in New York with Mr. Patterson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus L. Patterson. Young Patterson, who married Miss Parsons last September, is still a student at Harvard College. The wedding of the young people, which took place in Lenox, attracted several hundred of New York's fashionable set to the Berkshire resort for the occasion.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND COMMENT

Readjustment of Film Industry Causing Much Speculation

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

There has been a great deal of talk on the subject of a so-called "readjustment of the film industry," which is taking place at present. Any failures in this newest of the arts are laid to this "shake down." All unusual phases in New York or Hollywood are attributed to the same convenient cause.

Just what the readjustment really is is hard to say. Some think it will sound the death-knell of the "star system," that bugbear of all producers. Some think it will mark the dominance of the author. Still others feel that the director is coming into his own. Whatever the reason for the upheaval, the developments that rise from the ruins to "carry on" should prove irresistible successes.

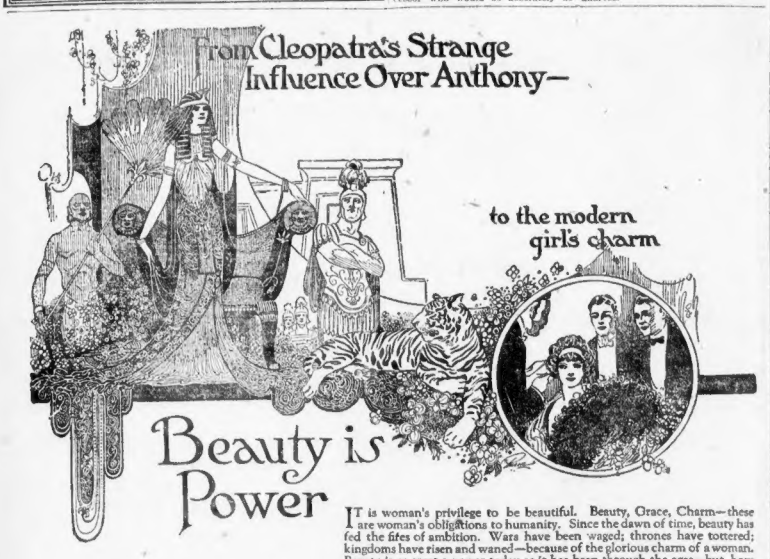
One of the points of this controversy is the question of the "star system." Is it the star of a film who draws the crowds? Or is it the story? Or the direction? Or the production as a whole? Whatever one reaches a more or less definite—to his way of thinking—conclusion to this series of questions, something comes up to disprove entirely what he has decided.

When motion pictures were started, no names were given on the screen. When, however, the movie-goers wrote to the producers asking who the girl with the curls was, they replied, "Mary Pickford," and used her name as a drawing power after that. That started it. Since then very nearly every pretty face that caught the public's fancy has promptly caused its owner to be starred.

Madame Olga Petrova remarked in a speech before the Authors' Club in New York the other day that the directors have attached too much importance to the face of a woman and too little to what lay beneath it. She feels that there are too few trained actresses on the screen. It takes years of experience and work to perfect the art of acting, she contended, and too many of those who have their names in electric lights have been trained for but a few years or even a few months.

One cannot, naturally, deny the value of the star entirely, for there are stars and stars. It cannot be taken that all the stars we have do not deserve the title. Pauline Frederick, Nadimova, Miss Pickford, for example, have full right to the honor, for when they are announced as the attraction at a theatre the public goes to see them. In fact, people would go to see them regardless of their story.

Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, made the statement that the star as an attraction has been finally eclipsed by the value of the story told by the picture. In other words, according to Mr. Zukor, "the play's the thing."



It is woman's privilege to be beautiful. Beauty, Grace, Charm—these are woman's obligations to humanity. Since the dawn of time, beauty has fed the fires of ambition. Wars have been waged; thrones have tottered; kingdoms have risen and waned—because of the glorious charm of a woman. Beauty is as great a power today as it has been through the ages—but, how many women know that beauty is within their grasp—that they may be beautiful if they only will.

BOSTON GUESTS STUDY LIGHTING IN MILWAUKEE

Construction of Municipal Plant Projected, City Councilmen Learn

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Milwaukee, Jan. 9.—Mayor Aldermen and a number of prominent business men and representatives of civic organizations received and entertained the special Boston lighting committee here. The lighting plans of the city were explained to the visitors by the chief of the engineering department.

They indicated a most thorough study of municipal lighting problems by the Milwaukee officials and disclosed the fact that the Wisconsin city is a few steps in advance of Boston in practical consideration of the whole question.

The Boston men found Milwaukee less radical than they had supposed it to be. It has not gone heading into municipal lighting. It has progressed toward it conservatively. City officials who addressed the Boston delegation appeared to be shrewd, hard-headed businessmen in politics.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

Some are Socialists but without exception they emphasized the fact that municipal lighting is a strictly business proposition and in no sense or degree a political one.

The Milwaukee municipal lighting manufacturing plant exists only in plans today. Construction work will not begin for at least a year. It was decided to embark upon the enterprise gradually.

Hundreds concrete poles for the street lights have been erected throughout the city. The are lights vary in candle power from 250 to 1000. The city has built an elaborate underground conduit system. Nothing was paid to the private company which had enjoyed a lighting monopoly for years for its conduits or other street equipment. The city did not take over any part of it. The officials figured no injustice was done the private concern, as it had charged off enough for depreciation, more than to offset the value of its street equipment.

Juice for the city of Milwaukee's street lighting is furnished by the Traction Light and Power Company for one and one-quarter cents per kilowatt hour. This price is fixed by the State Public Utilities Commission. This brings the entire cost of each 1,000-candle power are street light to the city $34. Before the present arrangement the cost was $58.

BOSTON PAYS MORE.

Boston pays the Edison Company $73.60 for each 800-candle-power street lamp.

A garbage reduction plant is successfully operated by Milwaukee. The manager of the plant believes the greases could be treated in a way to insure more profit and by-products more profitably at least. He has heard stories of wonderful things being done at the reduction plant in Montevideo and at his suggestion an expert has been engaged by Milwaukee to go to that South American city and study the reduction processes in vogue there. The Milwaukee hosts quite won the hearts of their Boston guests. They showed their plans and equipment and explained things in detail as if it was a great privilege and rare pleasure to have the opportunity.

ROXBURY TEAMSTER IS KILLED BY FALL

Chipman Keith was killed in the Huntington avenue yards of the Boston & Albany railroad today. Keith was a teamster employed by a Roxbury construction company. While unloading material from his wagon the tailboard chain gave way, precipitating him head-first to the ground, and fracturing his skull. Keith was sixty years old and lived at No. 2002 Washington street, Roxbury.

NEGRO SLAYER OF TWO REPORTED CAPTURED

New York, Jan. 9.—Luther Boddy, negro, wanted for the slaying of two New York detectives, was caught in Philadelphia today, according to a telephone message to police headquarters here. Capture followed a three days' chase in which police, detectives, State troopers and civilians participated.

JOHN P. JOHNSON.

President Harding is expected to shortly send the name of John P. Johnson to the Senate for confirmation as immigration commissioner at Boston and that of Frank S. Abercrombie to be assistant commissioner. The appointments have been recommended by Senator Lodge.

Mr. Johnson, who has been in the service previously, is in business in Worcester. Abercrombie has been an inspector in the service at Boston for some time.

The name of John J. Hagberg, originally proposed by Senator Lodge was withdrawn. The nomination of Mr. Hagberg was protested by H. J. Skeffington, formerly immigration commissioner, who made charges that led to Hagberg being transferred to Ellis Island, New York.

FIND LAWRENCE GIRL DEAD BY GAS

Lawrence, Jan. 9.—Miss Pearl Littlejohn, twenty years old, who came here five weeks ago from Salem, N. H., was found dead from gas poisoning today at a boarding house on Wyman street.

The circumstances indicate suicide, but Medical Examiner George W. Dow is withholding his decision.

Miss Littlejohn took a room at a lodging house conducted by James Arblaster. It is understood she was working in one of the mills, but she said little about herself. One neighbor today told of the girl saying on Saturday that she "was tired of life."

Miss Littlejohn went to her room at 7:30 last night. When she failed to appear today, Arblaster broke open the door. The girl was lying on the bed in her night garments. A single gas jet was turned on full and the windows were all closed.

Police and firemen were called and used a pulmotor for some time in an attempt to revive her.

MARQUIS OKUMA IS REPORTED STILL ALIVE

COL. SCANNELL IS DEAD OF PARALYSIS

Picturesque Advocate of Irish Freedom Also Owned Famous "Skellig Mohr"

Colonel Roger F. Scannell, for years a warm defender of the Irish cause, and known to generations of Bostonians as one of the most picturesque characters of the circle which has worked here for Irish freedom, is dead at the home of a niece on Guilford street, Allston.

Colonel Scannell was stricken a week ago with paralysis and because of his advanced age—he was in his eighties—failed to rally from the attack.

By a singular coincidence, his death occurred almost at the exact moment when the Dail Eireann was voting into existence the Irish Free State, for which he had worked all his life.

FUNERAL TOMORROW.

A requiem mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning in St. Columbkille's Church, Brighton.

Colonel Scannell, who is survived by a son, Roger F. Scannell, Jr., was a retired manufacturer of mineral water. He came into prominence here some time ago during the course of a thirty-year suit between his own concern and a rival company in regard to patent rights.

The colonel owned the famous "Skellig Mohr," a goat which he had brought over especially from Ireland, and which he characterized as "the greatest of goats." The goat figured for years in field days and picnics of various organizations of which Colonel Scannell was a member. One organization tried to claim the goat as their own, and Colonel Scannell was obliged to go through long legal battles before his title was clear.

GOAT IN MUSEUM.

"Skellig Mohr" was finally given to the sailors of the U. S. S. Vermont as a mascot. When the animal died its body was returned to Boston, stuffed and placed in a museum.

Later burglars broke into the colonel's office in a vain effort to steal the papers containing the goat's pedigree.

CURLEY INVITED TO LEAD GRAND MARCH

Mayor-elect James M. Curley has been invited to lead the grand march at the annual ball of the Knights of St. Finbar, Corkmen's Association, to be held in Roughan Hall, City square, Charlestown, on Wednesday evening, January 18. Invitations have also been sent to State and civity officials. The committee on relief for Ireland, which is composed of Knights and Ladies of St. Finbar, has sent $1,000 to the Irish Mission for Relief of Ireland.

CRUDE OIL PRICE CUT IN PITTSBURGH MARKETS

Pittsburgh, Jan. 9.—The principal purchasing agents today announced a reduction of 25 cents a barrel in all grades of crude oil handled in the market, except Ragland, which was reduced 15 cents. New prices are: Pennsylvania crude, $3.25; Corning, $1.90; Cabell, $2.11; Somerset, $1.90; Somerset light, $2.15; Ragland, $1.

URGES JOINING OF THREE SHOE UNIONS

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 9.—A proposal to amalgamate three national unions of shoe workers, which was favorably acted upon at a meeting here, will now be submitted to a referendum vote of all the members of the three unions, it was announced today. The referendum is expected to be taken next month and, if the proposal is adopted, a convention to effect the amalgamation will be held in Boston May 17.

Won Belasco's Notice While Playing in Stock Company

BELLE BENNETT.

BELLE BENNETT A TENT SHOW GRADUATE

Belle Bennett, one of the leading players in "The Wandering Jew," the big spectacular production which Belasco and Erlanger are bringing to the Hollis tonight, is a graduate of a tent theatrical company, a form of entertainment almost unknown nowadays.

Although she is still a young woman she has a long stage career behind her, dating back to the age of five, when she made her debut, replacing a "prop" doll in "The Fatal Wedding."

Miss Bennett was known as the marvelous child actress in the "Billy B. Bennett-Big Shows" under canvas. Billy Bennett was her father. She played Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and the drunkard's child in "Ten Nights in a Barroom" and the title role in "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

As soon as she reached the age of eighteen she abandoned the tent shows and went to Broadway. Her debut on the regular stage was in a small part with Otis Skinner in "Kismet." Then she joined the Alcazar stock in San Francisco and played for eighty-five weeks without a day's vacation.

Her long stock experience made a real actress of her, and won her the attention of David Belasco, the goal of every actress. Result, a big part in "The Wandering Jew."

BIRTH IS CELEBRATED BY LAWRENCE CHINESE

Lawrence, Jan. 9.—Local Chinese residents are celebrating on the occasion of the birth of one of the first Chinese children here. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chin Tuen of No. 159 South Union street, the former being fifteen years old and the mother, eighteen.

SOUTH END GIRL ELUDES FATHER AND ELOPES

Dashes Into Sweetheart's Machine as Angry Parent Rushes to the Street to Stop Her

Police of Boston and Barre, Vt., are searching for Miss Grace Lucier, eighteen-year-old clerk in the Massachusetts State Highway Department, and Harold Noel of the South End, who sped away from the girl's home in an automobile Sunday morning while the girl's father vainly shouted for them to stop.

Charles L. Lucier of West Newton street, South End, the father of the girl, fears that they may be married by this time, and declares he will "put Nott behind the bars if anything happens" to his daughter.

The getaway of the young couple was a most thrilling and movie-like episode. The young man, according to Lucier, drove up to the girl's home and waited outside. She dashed out of the house with her father hot on her heels. Into the car jumped the young girl. Lucier was not far behind—but just too far, for as he first reached the running board of the machine the young man in the case "stepped" on the gas and with a laugh left the irate father shouting and gesticulating on West eNwton street.

Back to the house dashed the father and the telephone was burned as he told his trouble to the police and asked for aid in catching the couple. Police were rushed to the North Station to head off the couple who had stated they were going to Barre, Vt., but no trace of them could be found. The train for Barre had left a few minutes too soon, the father explained.

Police at Barre were notified by long distance telephone, but no trace of the eloping couple has been found by them.

ASKS COURT TO DROP PROF. PARKER'S SUIT

Pittsfield, Jan. 9.—In the Superior Court here today Rufus R. Sprague of Boston, attorney for Mrs. Emma L. Parker, formally moved for the dismissal of Professor Willis A. Parker's divorce suit against his client. A contract in which Professor and Mrs. Parker agreed to live apart, entered into while they were living at Claremont, Calif., was cited by Attorney Sprague as being in force. If he fails to have the case dismissed Attorney Sprague will ask the court for a change of venue to Suffolk county. A motion to this effect is already on file.

WHIST PARTIES ORDERED TO PAY TAX

Internal Revenue Collector Warns Settlement Must Be Made Within Thirty Days

Failure on the part of persons and organizations to collect the tax on admissions at whist parties which they conduct prompted Collector of Internal Revenue Malcolm E. Nichols today to issue the following statement relative to the necessity of collecting this tax:

"Admissions charged to whist parties are subject to tax at the rate of one cent for each ten cents or fraction thereof of the amount charged. The fact that no tickets are used and no money collected upon entering is immaterial. The tax must be collected whether or not tickets of admission are used, whether the amount charged is collected before or after entering, or during the progress of the whist game.

"Returns of these taxes together with remittance must be in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue not later than the last day of the month following the month for which returns are made. Failure to file returns with the time prescribed by the law will subject to Suffolk county to automatically accrue. Further information can be obtained from this office."

Double Rich Milk

From Sanitary Dairies—From High-Bred Cows

The dairies are sanitary, they are inspected.

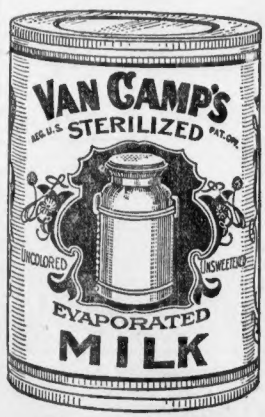
Extra-Rich Milk

In Van Camp's you get milk from healthy, high-bred cows. Every milking is tested for the butter-fat.

Then we reduce it to double richness by taking out more than one-half of the water.



"The Cow in the Pantry"

Van Camp's Milk comes to you as a cream. Dilute it one-half and you have rich milk. For cooking you have a whole milk, where you usually use skimmed milk.

Economical Milk

You get in Van Camp's economical milk.

There is no waste. It comes in small cans and large cans. Open little or much as you wish.

* * * * *

You never run short of milk, never run over. You have milk for every emergency, but none to throw away.

A 20-Year Product

We have spent 20 years to make Van Camp's the finest milk sold in America. The ablest milk experts have helped us. We have bought high-bred cows, built model condenseries and established sanitary dairies.

Now millions of homes get better milk than they ever had before. We urge you to join them.

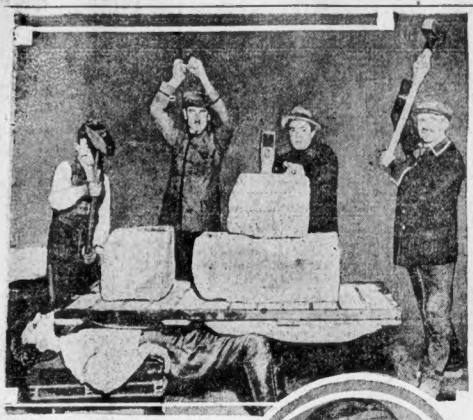
FOLLIES GIRL, WHO TRIED SUICIDE TWICE, SUES WEALTHY SUITOR



LIKE BROTHER SYLVEST, Germany's strong man can hold a couple of quarries on his chest, more or less. Breitbart, who has become famous in Europe because of his really remarkable feats of strength, will shortly tour America to frolic with some of America's strong boys. Photo shows four men breaking up heavy granite blocks on his chest. (Gilliams.)

MOHAMED ALI, son of Beha Ullah, founder of the Behai movement, who has just been named head of the century-old Persian religion on the death of his brother, Abdul Beha, which occurred recently in Palestine, and who had, at the time of his death, thousands of followers in New England. (Wide World.)

SO THIS IS PARIS! No, Oscar, you're wrong! This was Greenwich Village on one of its famous ball nights. This is the open season for parties in the "village," even to costumes. Here's Bobby de Guary and Mason Voorhees "doing their stuff." (Fotograms.)

IF YOU Can't Be Good Aboard Ship, at Least Be Careful! Mrs. M. E. L. Barron is one of the few women to ever hold appointment as a master of arms on a ship. She has just sailed in that capacity aboard the S. S. America. And for the benefit of you land lubbers who don't know what a master of arms is—she is a sort of ship policewomen. (International.)

A PERFECT DEAR! Certainly—both of them. But really you should take along something like this on your Palm Beach trip. A silk slip-on sweater, with roll collar, cuffs and pocket-like band at the bottom. (Underwood)

MARY LYGO, "Follies" girl, who twice tried suicide for love of Gordon Thorne, rich Chicago youth, now sues him and his mother. (International.)

A BIRD OF A BIRD! This enormous golden eagle, measuring 8 feet from tip to tip, was brought down but slightly injured by O. A. Arthur, a sportsman, of Tulsa, Okla., near his home. It was gorgeously colored on wing and body. The big fellow fought hard, even after he was downed. (Wide World.)

EVERYBODY Is Getting Trimmed Nowadays—Even the Hats! 'Ere is se ver' latest chapeau from Paree—a harbinger of Spring—delicately trimmed with ordinary sea shells. Is eet not nice, eh? (Fotograms.)

ALL SHE NEEDS Now Is a Cigarette! Peggy Harvey, British actress, who has just arrived here, says the Indian urban is all the rage "over heyah." The Prince of Wales' visit to India did it, she says. (Fotograms.)

WHERE'LL WE GO? The Boston American's Pretty Motorist Test has proved that there are more comely cuties in these tight little States than one could ever imagine. Miss Gertrude R. Gray of Becket, Mass., is another lucky girl to win an award. A check for $5 will be mailed to her. Although no more pictures will be entered after Jan. 15, there is still a chance for a gor' clear photograph to win its owner a prize. Perhaps some of the motorists published may not seem pretty to all readers, but clear photography was one of the essentials.

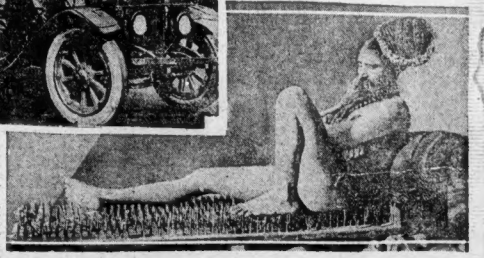
GOING UP! The trolley fares are the only thing that ch this height here. Remarkable photo of trolley line Mt. Lowe trail in Sierra Madre Mts., Cal. Maximum de is 62 degrees. Line has 127 curves and 18 bridges. (Fotograms.)

FLAMING CLOUDS OF WAR BECOME THE TOOL OF PEACE! For many years locusts have been the source of large expense and a terrible nuisance in South Africa. Thousands of dollars have been spent to eradicate them, but results were largely of a temporary nature. But an inventive British soldier conceived the idea of using the liquid flame of wartime to wipe out the pests. The photo shows the soldier spraying the liquid fire on a cloud of locusts. As fast as they swarmed over the field, the burning liquid consumed them. (Wide World.)

BET IT'S NAME ISN'T HENRY! This motor bus is said to have established a new record for gasoline propelled cars. In 81 trips it covered a distance of 20,000 miles, making 69 round trips per month from Los Angeles to Redland, Cal. The name of the car ——. Isn't this lovely weather we're having? (International.)



MOVE OVER AND GIVE A FELLOW A SEAT! There'd be no car hogs if passengers were forced to ride on seats like this. But such sights as this are not uncommon on the streets of Calcutta, India. This street fakir, sitting on the sharp spikes, is practicing his idiosyncracies to a very serious and observant group of onlookers. (Underwood.)

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

SINN FEIN'S PLANS FOR PEACE AND PROSPERITY

The following is the sixth and concluding article by W. G. Fitzgerald on the inside story of the Irish-British treaty.

Sinn Fein's Vision of Ireland's Glorious Rebirth

By W. G. FITZGERALD.

ARTICLE VI.

DUBLIN, Ire., Jan. 9.—Over all the sub-committees brooded the authority of a high commission on the resources and industries of the Free State. In selecting the members of this commission religion and politics were completely ignored, with the new statecraft and vision which marks reborn Ireland as a power. Experience and skill were the sole qualifications looked for.

Thus food production came under the hen of Thomas Johnson, the Sam Gompers of Ireland's trade unions. And first of all came dairies, fisheries and meat supplies. Next came Dr. Hugh Ryan, D. Sc., professor of chemistry at University College, Dublin, who went exhaustively into the coal resources of the nation, as well as her waterpower and the possibilities of peat and industrial alcohol.

A national dairy council was formed, and American cow-testing systems adopted. These bid fair enormously to increase Ireland's milk yield, so her export of that famous butter is soon to be doubled.

COAL FIELDS VISITED.

Then stud farms were established in each province, with pedigreed bulls of the finest strains placed at the disposal of dairy farmers. After that came the question of Ireland's sea fisheries, along a coastline which is greater than England's own.

As for the coal fields, expert delegates visited all these, and prepared an elaborate memoir, upon which the Dail is resolved to act with full resources of men and money. Special envoys were sent to the anthracite mines of southwest Wales to report on the winning and operation of these by the latest mechanical appliances. It is great news that the known and exposed coal fields of Ireland contain a rough potential of 2,044,000,000 tons. The six main deposits are those of Leinster, the Slieve Daragh, Munster, Connaught, Ballycastle and Lough Neagh.

There are also minor coal-beds and "concealed" deposits. It is the same with other minerals. From one county alone Professor Hull reports an area of 167 square miles of plastitic iron ore, of 40 per cent. richness. There are also silver and lead, copper, sulphur and cement, as well as marble, granite and building-stones for Ireland's new and prosperous homes—which Arthur Griffith extols in a special repart "printed on Irish-made paper."

BIG PEAT RESOURCES.

As for hydro-electric developments, the Dail has plans and promised capital which will harness the Shannon and Erne rivers into power which can run the factories, railways and trams of the entire nation. It was Viscount Northcliffe who first pointed out the advantage of this. And it is possible to supply such power at less than one-fifth of its cost in England.

Ulster herself is bitten with the rage for regeneration. She also is looking into her undeveloped coal ranges, and as I motored through County Clare proud eagar farmers showed me their ledges which appeared to be built of ore containing up to 80 per cent. of pure zinc.

A scientific peat committee reports a potential 6,000,000,000 tons of this valuable material with a coal equivalent of roughly about one-half, according to that great engineer, Sir John Griffiths. It is not amazing that all these constructive plans and investigations can have gone on simultaneously with the all-national gearing of Ireland for a "hopeless" guerilla warfare against the might of the British Empire.

But all of a sudden the dark clouds were pierced with rays of light. The I. R. A. became more "invisible" than ever, and the phantom of destruction faded away—as the five delegates hope—forever.

On all sides young Ireland is awake, conquered as Lloyd George believes, by "a conquest of the heart and conscience." Capital is offered from all parts of the world, literally from Paris to Sydney and from Hobart in Tasmania to Los Angeles. Mr. De Valera's financial agents, Harry Boland and Stephen O'Mara, are collecting millions of money. Great trunk roads and tramways are projected to carry an increase in foodstuffs and manufactured goods which will amaze all Europe. Last year the admittedly mistaken government of Ireland cost us taxes alone £50,613,000. Of this, £29,221,000 was spent in wasteful and inefficient repression. The rest—£21,394,000—left the country as Ireland's unwilling tribute.

But now the huge army of occupation will be withdrawn or disbanded. All Ireland fairly hums and thrills with pulsating life, which will have a wonderful effect in dissipating the unemployment and trade depression problems of Britain. Never again, in peace or war, can there be any question of enmity between the two sister nations, who at last have come to understand each other in that big and dreary council chamber in Downing street. The strategic peril is now known to the governing class of England as a military mare's nest.

AWARE OF MENACE.

The Irish people are aware also that the reduction of Britain by a foreign foe would involve their own ruin in ruin. So King George was justified in his famous Belfast speech, wherein he besought Irishmen of all shades and both religions "to stretch out the hand of forbearance and conciliation . . . and to join in making for Ireland they love a new era of contentment and peace."

Such, then, were the Black and White Cards held in the grim hands of the Dail Eireann and Sinn Fein. They prepared at once for war and peace. It is of course a compromise which their envoys have brought back to the Mansion House. How the nation at large will view the treaty remains to be seen.

THE END.

U. S. MONOPOLY OF OPIUM IS ADVOCATED

Pharmaceutical Expert Says Government Control of Trade Will Balk Evil

That the government should deal in habit-forming narcotics and forbid private manufacture and sale of the drugs, is the suggestion made today by William S. Brixy, assistant supervisor of the Port of Boston and former member of the State Board of Registration in Pharmacy. Under the arrangement he believes the fast-growing "dope" peril would be curbed. This is the second article contributed by Mr. Brixy in the Boston American's crusade against the drug evil.

By WILLIAM S. BRIXY.

Ten million dollars profit is not readily given up by a person or country. Yet it is stated that this amount is the revenue profit from the opium auctions in India. The most direct way to curb the illicit drug traffic, which is menacing America, is to reduce the cultivation of opium to the least amount necessary for medicinal purposes.

The growing of opium should be controlled by the government of the producing country. The sale of opium and cocaine should be made only to various governments of the world. They in turn should direct the manufacture of opium into its various derivatives.

Then the Federal governments could turn over the distribution to the State governments and so on to the cities and towns. By this means the price of narcotics for medicinal purposes could be reduced fifty per cent, and the government would collect enough revenue to cover all expenses.

The people, however, would have to back up such a move, or it could never be successful. The matter is one of public health. It is a matter that is not advertised much by the drug trade, which knows what happens to ninety-nine per cent. of the addicts who are rapidly increasing.

The people can stop anything if they are enough aroused. People generally are not awake to the drug menace; they don't realize that there are some 1,000,000 "dope fiends" in this country.

Is Massachusetts ready to put a law on her statute books that will make a "dope" pedlar suffer as severe a penalty as a murderer? Surely a man or woman who deliberately takes many lives by causing young people to become "dopes," deserves more punishment than a light fine or sentence.

Education of the public will help. The Boston American is doing this very thing. A more worthy undertaking was never taken than this crusade of this newspaper.

I would favor deporting every alien caught selling "dope" in this country. This would put some fear into their hearts. A "dope" pedlar is the most loathesome viper in the community. He wrecks the lives of every one to whom he sells narcotics, and, unlike a murderer, he tortures his unfortunate victims by slow death to the accompaniment of criminal misdeeds.

It is not a case of curing those already addicted to eten the new year crop of beginners. Only since 1913 has there been any genuine effort on the part of the government to stop the "dope" traffic. It has gained tremendous headway. Canada is far behind in coping with the problem. Much of our supplies come from the Dominion.

At hearings in the State House on the drug peril it was brought out that 1,100 persons in Massachusetts, other than doctors, druggists and dentists, had permits from the government which allowed them to purchase "dope." There are only a few manufacturing houses in this number.

(To be concluded tomorrow.)

5 IN COURT AFTER DRY AGENT WILSON'S RAIDS

As an aftermath of Chief Prohibition Agent Harold D. Wilson's activities last Saturday night in detecting several violations of the Volstead Act in this city, five defendants were before United States Commissioner Wheeler today. They were Thomas Gay, owner of a near-beer saloon on Washington street, and his bartender, Patrick Gillespie, held in $500 bail each until January 15; Florence McCarthy, owner of a near-beer saloon on Main street, Charlestown, held in $500 bail till January 16; Max O. Carvin, Revere, $500 bail until January 11, and Thomas F. Haugh, East Boston, $500 bail for Grand Jury.

INNOCENCE IS DECLARED BY NEWBERRY

"As God Is My Witness," He Tells Senate in Sweeping Denial of Ford's Charges

Washington, Jan. 9.—A sweeping declaration of his innocence was made by Senator Newberry, of Michigan, today in the Senate.

Taking the floor for his own defence in the ouster proceedings brought by Henry Ford, the defeated Democratic candidate, Senator Newberry emphatically denied personal knowledge of the collecting or expenditure of the large campaign fund spent in his behalf.

"As God is my witness," he said, "I am not to this day and hour conscious of having done in connection with either the primary campaign or the general election of 1918 in the State of Michigan, a single act that was, or is, in any way unlawful, dishonorable, or corrupt, and this I say to the Senate of the United States, without reservation or qualification.

"Upon these facts, as I then believed them to be and as I now believe them to be, I shall abide the result with a clear conscience."

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 9.—A footprint made by an animal believed by scientists to be that of the grandfather of the kangaroo species has just been found in an ancient lagoon in the Hastings district.

The animal which made the imprints many thousands of years ago is called by experts the iguanodon, one of the members of the dinosaur family, of which numerous tracts have been found in America and reconstructed in American museums.

The iguanodon is supposed to have been twenty to thirty feet in height, his footprint covered an area of nearly four square feet.

MISSING MOTHER THOUGHT TO BE IN NEW YORK

Mysterious Phone Message Received by Frederic Brown of Watertown

Frederic Brown, the husband, received a mysterious telephone message advising him to inquire of friends in New York concerning the whereabouts of his wife and four-year-old son, whom she took away.

Gertrude, the daughter, who has cried incessantly since she was abandoned, showed her first interest in life when told of the message, and became almost happy in the belief that her mother would soon be home again.

Each of the fifty winners may designate his favorite series, and an original drawing by that artist who created that series will be given each winner.

The letter must be divided into two parts—the first part devoted to the writer's opinion of the comic series which the participant regards as best, and the second part to the comic series which the voter regards as least meritorious.

A voting blank is printed herewith.

Use that with your letter. The test will end on February 1. Men, women and children are eligible. Only one vote and letter permitted to each participant.

All letters should be addressed to the Comic Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

An Open Letter of Appreciation for the Unprecedented Response to Our Announcement of the New Year

MOXIE PRICE REDUCTION

To Our Millions of Friends Everywhere:

IN response to our communication of January 1st, announcing a substantial price reduction, bringing Moxie "back to normalcy," you have certainly started the New Year off happily for us. Your response has been so liberal in patronage that it has overwhelmed us. The response has been universal, North, South, East and West.

To undertake to reply to this by letter, wire or 'phone is an impossible task, owing to the volume. We feel, therefore, that we must again adopt this open letter through the newspapers in order that you may be aware of our appreciation of your wonderful expression which further tends to confirm our faith in our enormous goodwill, born of the best product on earth, the standard beverage MOXIE, and of universal fair dealing for almost half a century.

Particularly gratifying is the fact that every Moxie jobbing house and retail dealer, their salesmen and employees generally, numbering approximately 300,000, grasped the situation with enthusiasm, put their shoulders to the wheel and put Moxie, the standard beverage, back to normal, as it were, almost overnight, the most wonderful illustration of co-operation that was ever brought to the public attention, we believe.

Words fail us to express our appreciation, but it will inspire us with all the force at our command to bigger and better efforts if possible.

THE MOXIE COMPANY.

COAST GOLFERS SURE TO SHOW IN FRONT IN TITLE PLAYS

By JOCK HUTCHISON

The trip to the Pacific coast undertaken by Jim Barnes and myself for exhibition purposes has been an eye-opener for me. I little dreamed that golf had grown to such an extent in the Far West.

We started in Vancouver about the middle of December, and have been kept busy ever since playing at least five matches a week, but it doesn't seem to be hard work. There is something in the climate that lovers a fellow going at top speed. When we undertook this trip we figured that it would be a terrible grind, something like Mitchell and Duncan went through the last year, or Vardon and Ray the year before.

But the Britishers played through the hot season, while we have had nothing but fall weather. Vancouver is a thoroughly up-to-date golf town. The Vancouver Country Club, where we played, is a better course than I had figured on.

We won our match easily enough there, and a large and enthusiastic crowd followed us. Neither Jim nor myself had limbered up beforehand to any extent.

We both hit a few balls in practice just to get the feel of the clubs.

We were surprised at the other courses along the northwestern coast, many of them comparing favorably with the best we have in the East. With such excellent playing grounds well thinkered, and with first class greens, golf is bound to grow in popularity.

Many good golfers are being developed, who will make their presence felt in championships before many seasons pass.

Some of the best players in the Northwest played in the amateur championship at St. Louis last season, and made a very favorable impression. They are talking now of another trip East next Summer with the championship at Brookline in view. Sooner or later a Pacific Coast star will win this event.

* * *

We found golf enthusiasm running highest at San Francisco, where we met defeat at the hands of Macdonald Smith and Fred Whiting. This battle was waged in a howling wind storm which would do credit to any of the famous wind-swept links on the other side of the Atlantic.

* * *

The way Macdonald Smith ploughed his way through the gale was something well worth writing about. I have said before that little Mac was one of the greatest stars the game has ever known and I am more than ever convinced of it.

* * *

To appreciate Mac's greatness it must be known first of all that he is slightly built, weigh.ng not over 130 pounds.

He does not impress one with having the necessary reserve of strength that most successful players have, and this may be the reason that he has failed to win a big championship.

He is the youngest of the Smith family of golfers, who have been famous for years on the links both here and in Scotland.

Willie, the oldest, now dead, was the first to win a championship, then followed Alex. Mac tied with his brother Alex and Johnnie McDermott in 1910 for the title, but Alex won the playoff. Mac finished fourth in 1913.

* * *

He has a very graceful and easy style, getting a great amount of distance through the perfect timing of the stroke. He showed rare skill in holding the drive on the line, although neither Barnes or myself had much success in keeping our drives or long iron shots straight.

* * *

Smith has a pitch to the green somewhat different from that of any of the rest of us. The ball is out of the high pitch variety, but a very low one and carries a great amount of back spin.

* * *

I learned considerable from Mac when we were both in Pittsburgh. I was at the Allegheny Country Club while Mac was stationed over at Oakmont. We used to play together two or three times a week.

* * *

There are many other good golfers on the coast. Among them is John Black, who has played in one or two open events in the East but not enough to attract any attention, although he is a very fine golfer. He was on the winning end of a combination that beat us a few weeks ago further north, which was our first set back.

The courses around San Francisco, I am frank to admit, surprised us considerably. There is always more or less wind blowing there, and the golfer who has had experience under such trying conditions will find an advantage while the beginner gains experience that should stand him well in hand.

The good people of the State of California, as well as of Washington and Oregon, are golf enthusiasts of a rare kind. One would think that they had always known golf out there. The gallaries are well behaved and display a good deal more golf than the average gallery does in the East. The game is growing fast on the coast, because it is an all-year-round proposition.

We are looking forward to the California championship, which will be played January 11 to 17. This will be held at the Wilshire Country Club at Los Angeles. On the thirteenth we play an exhibition match there, so we will have a couple of rounds practice over the course before we tee up in the tournament.

MEDBURY

Says if You Must Go Hungry You Can Do It Faster in a Quick Lunch Place

Restaurants seem to be being out of style and quick lunches are taking their places. These are the cafes where you can get a meal faster and pay for it sooner.

You walk on yourself. They don't know anything about service. They think Service is the guy who's up in Alaska writing poems.

These sudden lunches are usually opened next to a big restaurant so that the odor of the swell kitchen will blow into their dining room.

You have to watch your hat and coat with one eye and your coffee and cake with the other. A guy with a close eye has a busy time in these places.

These places are so quick that a man can go in, get steak and potatoes and lose his hat and coat in less than five minutes.

One man went in with his little boy and when the waiter asked for the ticket the man said his little boy didn't have to have one as he was under five years old.

But these places do the business they're so crowded that the man next to you is liable to put his sugar in your coffee.

One man knew he ordered roast beef, but when he started in he discovered that he was eating tripe. He had to change seats with the man next to him in order to eat off a his own plate.

The food is good and the menu is written in English. But a lot of men would rather go next door and pay two dollars for something they can't understand.

One man was so particular that he appropriated a knife from the Ritz and then went into a quick lunch and ate with it.

SHEPPARD AND OWENS AT LYNN TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

"Irish Paddy" Owens will be back in the ring tonight. The sturdy Cambridge bantamweight is booked to clash with Johnny Sheppard of Woburn in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Casino A. C.'s show at Lynn. As there is intense rivalry between these youths, Matchmaker Jack Murphy looks for a large crowd.

The futurs of Sheppard depends upon the outcome of tonight's battle. A defeat will halt his climb up the flistic ladder and Owens is bent upon winning a decision upon the Woburn boy, who has come along in a sensational manner.

Sheppard is in the best possible shape for a hard contest. He realizes that he must win in order to receive the consideration which has been promised him if his record of victories remains unbroken. All Woburn will journey to Lynn to see their idol in his first main bout. Sheppard is a great favorite with the boxing fans because of his aggressiveness and his willingness to mix at close range. He desires to win over Owens, if such a thing is possible, by forcing the fighting at all times.

* * *

Against Owens the Woburn bantam will be compelled to uncover everything he has. Paddy is acknowledged to be a crafty boxer and he rates on his past record a little higher than Sheppard, but the Woburn boy has upset the dope in numerous bouts, and his supporters figure he will wrest the award from Owens. The Cambridge battler has been training for three weeks to get into shape for the Lynn bout. It is his sole ambition to put a crimp in Sheppard's record.

* * *

In the semi-final Billy Shine of Quincy will meet Dinny Glynn of Roxbury. Glynn is a newcomer, while Buff of Holyoke will meet Kid Philpin of Newton, and in another bout Young Gayo of the West End will tackle Kid Burns of Salem.

* * *

Marty Killilea, manager of Johnny Wilson, intends to demand a public hearing before the New York Athletic Commission as a result of the indefinite suspension of the Charlestown warrior. Killilea gives tonight to some of his plans in the following letter to this writer:

"Received notice from the New York Boxing Commission of the suspension of Middleweight Champion Johnny Wilson for refusing to live up to an illegal contract wh ch I was compelled to sign in order to get the $35,000 rightfully due Wilson for his bout with Bryan Downey on Labor Day last year.

* * *

"I have written the New York Commission asking that body for a hearing, in order that I may present the facts of the case, and when these facts are known I am positive that the New York Commission will reinstate Wilson.

"Until that hearing takes place I ask the fair-minded boxing fans of the country to withhold their judgment. There are always two sides to every case, and because of the fact that a man has been accused of something does not necessarily mean he is guilty.

* * *

"My contention is that Wilson has been unfairly and unjustly treated by Tex Rickard. Rickard held Wilson's money and refused to pay the champion for his Labor Day bout. True the fight was a poor one, but there was no claim of fraud and every newspaper in the country said that Rickard had no moral nor legal right to refuse to pay Wilson. But did he get his money. No; not for three months, and then only after I was clubbed into signing Wilson to fight Harry Greb.

"I do not think there is a court in the land that would not decide in Wilson's favor, for the law says that a contract signed under duress is not binding. I can prove that what I say is the truth.

* * *

"The press has led the public to believe that the reason Wilson refused to fight Greb is that he is afraid of losing his title. Such is not so. Wilson is willing and ready to meet Greb or any man in the world at 160 pounds. Can Greb make 160 pounds? Greb and Wilson were matched three times last Summer, and on each occasion the bout was called off because Greb would not do the middleweight limit. And if he did, what assurance have I got that Tex Rickard will pay me? Why doesn't Leonard fight for him? Why doesn't Gilmore? Probably they know what I learned on Labor Day last.

* * *

The world is familiar with the facts of the injustice done to Wilson on Labor Day, and yet Mr. Rickard was allowed to run boxing shows in New York City.

"In Wilson's case, he is immediately suspended, not only in the state where the alleged violation occurred, but throughout the country, and also without a hearing. I ask if this is a square deal? Are commissions supposed to compel boxers to live up to the letter of the law and allow promoters to do as they like?

* * *

"I do not claim that Wilson is the greatest champion that ever lived, but I do claim that Wilson won his title fairly and squarely and will continue to be champion until he is either knocked out or a referee's decision is given against him. Wilson will die with his little belief that Tex Rickard stood it from him."

* * *

Henry Myers writes:

"I see where Eddie Mack is out with the statement that Frankie Conway's hand is in good shape and he is anxious to start him with Freddie Madden or any boy in the country in a ten-go. Madden has given Frankie two good lickings, and will surely give him a third one if they meet again. Now, Eddie, trot out that star. Abe Frederman and Madden will hand him the same dose that he gave Clowney.

"There are several clubs in New England that will put on a Madden-Freidman bout if Abe will make up pounds. If Madden and Freidman ever met there we'll be a new New England bantamweight champion."

Middlesex Has Two Games

Middlesex School hockey teams will play two games this week. On Wednesday it will take on Stone School, and on Saturday the Browns and Nichols School.

PAT McCARTHY WILL FIGHT PAL REED

Commercial Athletic Club Directors Match Them for 10-Round Bout

Messrs. McKirdy and McCarthy, the gentlemen who do the heavy thinking for the Commercial A. C., have saved the week as far as local boxing fans are concerned, by announcing that Pat McCarthy and Pal Reed will battle in a ten-round bout at Mechanics building Friday night.

It would have been a rather dismal week for flstic followers with the Armory A. A. show billed for tonight off and the Carlyle Club in doubt about staging a tournament if the Reed-McCarthy match had not been arranged.

It will be the second meeting between this sturdy pair of punchers. Their last battle was filled with all kinds of thrills. The decision went to Reed at the end of ten rounds.

The going was so close that the judges disagreed and the referee decided the result by his verdict.

As McCarthy was training for his russle with Billy Shade, which was called off when the Californian injured one of his hands, he should be in good condition by Friday night. Reed has been doing light training and planned to increase his work today.

* * *

Medford will have a new boxing club. The organization will be known as the Medford A. C. and will stage its opening show at a hall in Winthrop square, Medford, on January 24. Tommy Burns, formerly of Manchester, N. H., is matchmaker. He is planning to pit Billy Woods, who is making his home in Medford, against Tommy McFarland in the feature bout at the opening show. Tibby Laurie, a promising Malden boy, who scales 120 pounds, will also probably be seen in action at the opening show.

BOWSER AND AJAX SIGN FOR WRESTLING CONTEST

On Thursday night there will be another wrestling carnival at the Grand Opera House under new management and the card is of genuine interest to all mat fans.

Paul Bowser, who won from Joe Turner last week, will take on a tough customer in Tony Ajax, the Polish demon. In meeting Ajax Paul will be called upon to defeat one of the best men since he came East. Bowser showed rare form against Turner, and a tough match is expected. Both are now in training for this affair.

The other bouts include Charles Metro and Joe Perelli, the Italian from Manchester, who has a reputation for rough house tactics. Harry Katron and George Summers of Gloucester. Katron is a Greek from Portland.

DR. McCARTHY MADE TUFTS TRACK COACH

Tufts track prospects look brighter for the coming season with the appointment of Dr. W. T. McCarthy as coach of the Jumbo team. Tufts track sports have been minus a guiding hand since last Spring, when the eyes in McCarthy's hands, a successful season is expected. Five indoor meets are being arranged.

Coach McCarthy has a wealth of material at hand. Many have had experience under Tufts supervision. Captain John Doherty and his brother "Joe," have not as yet reported, but are expected out next week.

The new coach is well qualified for his position. He is not a stranger to the "hill," as he coached the Jumbo team in 1912-14. While at Cornell, he established a reputation as a middle distance and cross-country man. He is a former University of Ohio coach. He is at present the supervisor of athletics in the Arlington public schools.

SPRINGFIELD SWIMMERS IN SEVEN DUAL MEETS

Springfield, Jan. 9.—Seven dual meets have been scheduled for the Springfield College swimming team. The season opens Friday night with the strong Technology team will be met in Springfield.

Seven veterans are available, including Captain Eastwood, who has led the team for the last two years and who beat Captain S. R. Damon of Amherst, Intercollegiate 50-yard champion, in the 440-yard event in the Springfield pool last year.

Attleboro Has League

Attleboro, Jan. 9.—An amateur basketball league has been organized, and will have officers as follows: Daniel O'Connell, president; Kenneth F. Blandin, secretary and treasurer. The teams will be picked from the factories and games will be played evenings at Hayward field. Doubleheaders are planned for Saturdays, and the opening game will be played on May 15.

CLUB LEADER HAS NEW PLAN TO JUDGE BOUTS

The Boxing Commission is considering the idea of having three referees make the decision in the Charley White-Johnny Dundee fight to be staged by the Faneuil A. C. in Mechanics Building one week from tonight.

The club has requested the commission to substitute licensed referees for Judges because of the fact that White, who has a tentative match with Champion Benny Leonard, feels that the latter is the important battle of his career and wants the most experienced men that the commission has on its staff.

The idea has been talked of but it has never been put into practice, although New York has tried it with success after the fans howled about some of the decisions made by Judges. The judging of shows of late, however, have met with the approval of all the fans and for that reason the commission may decline to change.

The club, in its letter to the commission, stated that they had no criticism to offer regarding their judging staff and made the request at the suggestion of White.

The club also agreed to pay the regular referee's fee in case they were made judges.

The fans evidently regard the match between Dundee and White as the best affair in this class that has been arranged for Boston in a long time for there has been a stream of fight followers into the office of the Faneuil Club, No. 39 Court street, for tickets.

While a champion can't anticipate a crack at Leonard and he realizes that he must keep winning to do so. He is only thirty years of age and feels that he is in his prime. He points out that his scrap with Dundee in New York last Summer would indicate this.

The newspaper critics and most of the fans believed that White won by a big margin, but the official verdict was a draw. This decision has caused White to urge the appointment of three judges for the fight next Monday night.

THE BRIDE'S PLAY

A Stirring and Gorgeous Photoplay, Based on Donn Byrne's Famous Story

Synopsis

Aileen Barrett, a lovely young girl, daughter of John Barrett, lives in a small Irish village and has been brought up in a simple way, in accord with her father's scanty means, but has greatly endeared herself to the people of the country by her kindness and charm. Her father has long been planning to establish her, he has devoted himself to years of hard work and becomes rich, but is stricken with death. Aileen returns from her studies at a convent and meets Bulmer Meade, whose love poems she greatly admires. He tells her he loves her and love-making, hesitates to say so. Sir Fergus saw it too, and his dislike of Meade was fanned to a flame. Aileen never spoke of him now. [illegible] on her dressing table and romance still crowned him with a halo.

When a word to the old sexton Aileen resolved to find out for herself what had befallen the man she loved; her letters were returned unanswered, all efforts to communicate with him were futile, but there was one way and that was a trip to Dublin. Hen-wed hopes sprang up at the obvious solution, she would [illegible] in his own home and there learn the reason for his unaccountable silence.

Bulmer Meade's home was a picturesque little place on the outskirts of the city; it was not difficult to be driven there. The polite butler informed her that Mr. Meade was in town but not at that moment in the house and asked her casually if she cared to wait.

"You're waiting for Mr. Meade, too?"

Aileen nodded

"You look like a nice girl," said the other. "I like her but I wish love to you, too

"He's engaged to marry Anne Arnold, proudly

"Poor thing," said the other. "I wish I had a sovereign for every girl he's worked that racket on—I'd retire and tell him to go to the devil. I'm going to tell that anyway. He'll get a piece of my mind when he comes in—it's been waiting for him a long while."

Giving Particulars

"My name's Lyl Croyle—see that photograph of me on the mantel there—that's one of his tricks—inside, he's got a dozen more—that's his way—catch 'em early and often—and you say you were engaged to him."

THE MODERN GIRL

POINTED DISCUSSION OF HER IDEALS

By Beatrice Fairfax

"I WONDER if you could [illegible] of the type who will admire her for her [illegible] strength and sweetness. Both he and she will have the [illegible] of the rather bizarre type of the loneliness and desperation through which they have gone.

Many women today are so avid for the moment, so afraid to wait till tomorrow and so terrified by the "chronic loneliness" which seems to be the lot of aspiring souls that they deliberately change their natures and play down to a group which they must despise—or pity.

Only one thing can be more terrible than to find that you've deliberately thrown away your own ideals, calmly lowered your standards and put yourself on a level beneath your true one. And that one thing is to find, when it's too late, that the best would have come if you'd waited.

All of us must live up to the best in ourselves if we're ever to be truly happy. No disappointment can be more tragic than the one that comes with self. No failure can be more absolute than the one which is produced by deliberately killing of the flowers in the garden and cultivating the garlish weeds.

Ideals is sure to meet at last with a man who will admire her for her [illegible] strength and sweetness. Both he and she will have the [illegible] of the rather bizarre type of the loneliness and desperation through which they have gone.

Taught by Mother

"My mother taught me to want the best in life. And I want to want it and to go on wanting it. But the man of today doesn't admire the woman who clings to her vision of what is fine and true. He tells her to be a good sport and have a little fun. Perhaps after a while she gets tired of being lonesome and decides she might as well grab the moment and its pleasures.

But if she does—if she clings to her ideals—where is she going to find a man who measures up to them? Sometimes I wonder if there's any reward for decency. Any use in ideals. They seem to leave one lonely and embittered. What do you think about it?"

For the Moment

I don't think ideals leave you lonely and embittered. Instead they keep you hopeful and waiting for the big things that are just around the corner of life whether [illegible] or not we believe it.

The man of today does admire the woman who has a clear vision of what is fine and true. Perhaps the "lounge lizard" type of man does. Unquestionably the waster and wealding who [illegible] nature of the moment hasn't any conception of the inner joy to be derived from strengthening character. So he neither develops ideas in himself nor longs to find them in a woman.

But what fine woman wants to spend the rest of her life with a man who is either weak, degraded or in any way the victim of his own casual emotions?

The woman who clings to her ideals is sure to meet at last with a man who will admire her for her [illegible] strength and sweetness. Both he and she will have the [illegible] of the rather bizarre type of the loneliness and desperation through which they have gone.

Many women today are so avid for the moment, so afraid to wait till tomorrow and so terrified by the "chronic loneliness" which seems to be the lot of aspiring souls that they deliberately change their natures and play down to a group which they must despise—or pity.

Only one thing can be more terrible than to find that you've deliberately thrown away your own ideals, calmly lowered your standards and put yourself on a level beneath your true one. And that one thing is to find, when it's too late, that the best would have come if you'd waited.

All of us must live up to the best in ourselves if we're ever to be truly happy. No disappointment can be more tragic than the one that comes with self. No failure can be more absolute than the one which is produced by deliberately killing of the flowers in the garden and cultivating the garlish weeds.

ANECDOTES OF FAMOUS

What is believed to be a hitherto unpublished Mark Twain story was recently related by a well known publisher. The famous humorist, during the few years of his life was on a visit to a small town in the English Midlands, and was asked to lunch at the house of a certain well known lady, who, for the occasion, had gone into the highways and byways of the county and brought together many more or less distinguished folk to meet him.

Lunch was fixed for one. Half an hour later Mark Twain had arrived, but did not appear among the guests. Instead, his valet asked if there was a room where his master could rest a little because he was very tired. A sitting room upstairs was at once placed at his disposal, and thither he retired, laying down upon the couch, and slept there until 3 o'clock.

Meanwhile the party had lunch and discussed of the amiable eccentricities of elder literary lions. At five minutes past three Mark Twain came down and entered his host [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Readjustments of various sorts incident to the advent of the New Year have furnished the dominating influences of the market in the last week, and the result has been a state of uncertainty, tending to produce hesitation in the security markets. It is evident that no matter how encouraging may be the conclusions drawn from certain fundamental forces, there is a disposition on the part more attention to concrete factors, even though some of them may be of a relatively trivial nature.

THE market last week derived its color from minor incidents rather than the broad elements that are operating more slowly toward recovery. As one outlet of the business activities of the New Year, there was a rush to take down the 1921 profits, and it looked as if the process were going to be concentrated in the early days. This tendency was apparent in the commodity markets as well, for huge, long commitments of cotton and wheat were overboard immediately after the opening on Tuesday morning. Undoubtedly a great deal of selling in the oils, equipments, motors, rubber and tire shares and numerous specialties also made the subject of profit taking transactions. Around the opening levels of the week the profits were in the hands of those who took them wouldn't have to report them in their income tax statements until 1923. These offerings were sufficiently heavy to cause unsettlement and this feature gave professional bears their opportunity.

IT has also been clearly foreshadowed that the first quarter of the new year would have a large number of hang-over insolvencies in the textile concerns that have been carried along by an eyelash for the last year are likely to have their banking support withdrawn. The facts in the situation in this respect are bad enough, but the effect of the affairs has been exaggerated by ugly and irresponsible rumors regarding the credit of various concerns and firms. The suspension of a large Chicago warehouse last week has furnished the incentive for predictions of similar developments among the same line. And expert and impartial house engaged in the textile distribution had its affairs placed in the hands of creditors this week. Before the announcement was made, rumors connected the impending event with the names of numerous firms of unimpeachable responsibility.

THERE is also a feeling that in the effort to bring about the essential downward revision of commodity costs, the country will be harrassed by a series of labor disturbances. Labor must bear its share of unemployment will play its part in the attempt to justify the present leadership and the championship of the cause of the industrial worker. To the student of present economic conditions a lowering of production costs is absolutely necessary for the purpose of restoring equilibrium between the various producing groups. Compared with two years ago the agricultural producer has suffered a loss in money values ranging to almost 60 per cent., and in some cases even more. Industrial labor has not been able to make a similar contribution, but it should do its part.

THESE are the unfavorable elements that have received such striking emphasis in the last few days. On the other hand, the summoning of the economic conference in March, looking toward the participation of Germany and Russia, the allocation of part of the Reichsbank gold reserves to the settlement of reparations, the experiment of imports instead of for the immediate object of repatriating the German loan, a understanding on the subject of naval armaments and future military policies—these are bound to bear fruit in time, and most probably before many of the pessimists believe they will become tangibly effective.

MEANTIME, holdings of securities on the part of the public are small. The financial position of the country is improved week by week, and the feeling of apprehension over the general money and credit situation is happily removed.

OILS YIELD TO STEADY BEAR PRESSURE

Shipping Shares Are a Strong Group; Trading Most Active on Recessions

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

The New York market was weak at the close, failing to rally much in the last hour. Oils remained under steady bear pressure and there was a drive against some rails. Erie common and first preferred sagged more than two points to the lowest prices in many years. Among equities strong, first preferred advancing more than two and second preferred more than one point.

Among weakest stocks were General Asphalt, Crucible, Pacific Oil, North American, Texas Company, Petroleum, Pan American and Houston. Several specialties were strong, including Curtiss and Baldwin. Among equipments to make good gains were Hackell and Parker and Pullman. Marine preferred was up 3 points at its highest. Transactions exceeded half a million shares.

Late in the second hour there was a slight rally which put most issues above their lowest by noon, but this rise did not continue during the midday period and there was another reaction early in the afternoon. Trading was most active on decline. Shipping issues developed more strength than any other group during the morning. Several low-priced rails improved in market valuation. But the outstanding feature was the weakness of petroleum. Call money opened at 4 per cent, dropped to 3½ per cent. and then to 3 per cent. Foreign exchange was strong, demand sterling opening with a gain of more than two cents.

EARLY GAINS NOT RETAINED.

Prices were higher at the opening, with the exception of a few issues, but the upward movement was not sustained. In fact, an easing movement began at once and continued during the first hour. When the morning session was half over the market was weak. Trading was quiet on the decline. The lower call rate did not produce buying. Traders showed a disposition to take small profits where any were in sight. Oils led the market, they reflected the general trend. It was reported from Pittsburgh that the price of Pennsylvania crude oil had been cut again. The latest quotation is $4.25 a barrel. This represents 75 cents reduction within a week. Sugar, motor, tire, shipping, tobacco and steel issues all began higher, but yielded to the decline. Rails, like oils, had an irregular start and were more active than for several days. They were in moderate supply, particularly Chicago & Northwestern. It was soon almost 2 points below Saturday's final figures, and at its lowest price in 1921.

LATEST BANK STATEMENT.

The latest New York bank statement reflected recovery from New York's disastrous and readjustments. Surplus reserve showed nearly $40,000,000, there was a gain in cash in vault, and the market was above itself $27,000,000 more than a week before. The loan account was reduced $21,000,000. There is more Western money in New York at the beginning of this week than for several months. The money situation is contributing to the belief that the Federal Reserve rediscount rate will be reduced shortly. Business interests are now finding it easier to borrow money than to sell products. From most quarters hand-to-mouth buying is reported. There should be improvement in this respect after large consumers complete inventories. Conviction is strong that the soundness of the financial situation will stimulate trade by Springtime.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Jan. 9.—Adds from a sale of five thousand bales of March by one broker at the opening of the cotton market today, the market was firm with fair demand. Liberal operations by southern spot houses were the chief factors. New orleans, January interests and liverpool bought. Prices started 5 to 12 points higher and rose about 20 points before realizing. Parkhill closed at the top of fifteen to twenty points, ranging from 20.00 for March, 19.81; May, 17.90; July, 17.32; October, 16.55.

Massachusetts Trust Gain

During 1921 the Massachusetts Trust Company increased its assets from $2,000,000 to $6,000,000. Its accounts increased about 3,500 in number, now totaling more than 23,000. This bank has had a big and steady growth during the eight years of its existence.

Coffe Quotations

New York, Jan. 9.—The coffee market opened unchanged to a point higher, prices being: March, 8.09 to 8.85; May, 8.42 bid; July, 8.81 to 8.86; September, 8.30 to 8.37; October, 8.84 bid; November, 8.83 bid; December, 8.82 bid.

DULL OUTLOOK FOR ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

By C. B. EVANS.

(Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Co.)

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The world having the abolition of war on its hands in addition to innumerable other small matters, the man who lives not only the personal life, but a certain existence sympathetic with that of all mankind, feels a tremendous burden in these days, and he wonders if the reverential process now going on be comparable with the original task of creating the earth, which the scientific men tell us required ages. This, indeed, is the mood in which the multitud of many a person who thinks world things as well as his own affairs.

There is quiet disappointment over the amusement conference, unreasonable, indeed, but natural, to the man who at the outset regarded the prospect as brilliant. Even in the refractory element and Japan the power that looks on, speaks quietly, and sees that Japan shall get at least all that would naturally be coming to her.

With respect to the proposed world economic conference the publicistsare are inclined to smile at the motions in which the great men of Europe are now indulging as a matter of exhibition to the obdurate giant of the western world who cannot see much merit toying with the international exchange as a cure for the evils which a world war has brought upon us.

The apparent refusal of these statesmen to face a necessity—a liquidation in government affairs, in military preparations and in the old evil of coveting one's neighbor's property—makes preparations for an economic conference look much like a farce. It is too early, however, to pass judgment on the attitude of these men. It is possible that they have something real in their plan. Maybe Europe is going to face about and behave.

It is the opinion of authoritative financiers that the country could take no step toward participation in any such conference unless European statesmen and financiers demonstrate a purpose to do something really effective. On Europe continues to bury itself deeper and deeper in debt, and in currency which probably never will be redeemed, any economic device will be futile.

INADEQUATE LIGHTING A CAUSE OF INDUSTRIAL WASTE

Washington, D. C.—Poor and faulty illumination is the cause of gross waste in the majority of industrial plants in the United States, says the Committee on Elimination of Waste and Industry, in the report dealing with accidents due to eye defects.

"The eye is involved in 10.6 per cent of all permanently disabling accidents," says the report. "One estimate places the loss due to faulty conditions above the entire cost of illumination.

"In 446 plants investigated, only 4.7 per cent were found to be in excellent condition, the other readings being: Good, 19 per cent; fair, 29.1 per cent; poor, 18.4 per cent; very poor, 2.6 per cent; partly good, partly poor, 7.6 per cent.

American Valuation Policy

An Effort to Make Bad Conditions Worse

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

When you frame a common sense tariff, the process is simple. You decide approximately what percentage of protection should be given to INDUSTRY, LABOR and INVESTED CAPITAL, in the United States, competing in our home markets with FOREIGN labor, industry and invested capital.

Having made up your mind what protection is desirable, you add to the price that goods cost IN EUROPE the amount of the tariff upon which you have decided.

In other words, there is A EUROPEAN VALUATION of merchandise. It is a valuation easy to establish. It may be seen on the invoice, it can be established accurately. The American Consul can authenticate it.

Having established that FOREIGN VALUE of goods, whether in England, Italy, China, the Argentine, Germany or Spain, you say, "Before the article is sold in the United States there shall be added to that FOREIGN VALUATION a certain tariff which the United States Government will collect, thus increasing its revenues, and protecting home industry, labor and capital."

The extraordinary, entirely unheard of and dangerously vicious feature of the Fordney Tariff Bill is the effort to fix the tariff on an AMERICAN VALUATION OF GOODS.

That is as stupid, confusing and harmful as it would be, if we first added a tax to foreign goods, and then put a tariff on that. It is even worse, because what business needs above all, if it is to recover and go forward, is CERTAINTY, SIMPLICITY, FREEDOM FROM DOUBT, in all important matters.

What is the use of talking about AN AMERICAN VALUATION as the basis of a tariff.

The tariff is placed on what it costs to produce goods abroad, that is to say, A FOREIGN VALUATION. Is the business of this country, the most important business of all, which is the distribution of goods through retail agencies, to be kept in uncertainty, unable to purchase with safety, constantly at the mercy of an AMERICAN VALUATION scheme absolutely without limit, impossible to regulate on a sound basis?

Who are the Americans that are to place the American valuation on goods abroad, whose NORMAL FOREIGN VALUATION CAN BE IMMEDIATELY ASCERTAINED?

Not only the merchants of the United States whose business would be harassed and made uncertain by this stupid American valuation provision, but all that consider with intelligence the questions involved denounce this extraordinary plan to which Mr. Fordney has not given the necessary careful thought.

Professor Walter F. Wilcox of Cornell says:

The American valuation plan of the pending tariff bill is likely seriously to diminish the foreign trade of the United States and thus to diminish the chance that foreign countries will be able to pay their American debts, governmental and private. It is thus inconsistent with a policy of enlightened national selfishness. This plan is likely also to increase international friction and the danger of international complications, also of war.

Professor D. Dozier, professor of economics at Dartmouth College, says:

Most of our tariff laws have been passed on grounds of expediency and not as matters of principle. The situation to be met at the present is stagnation at home and want abroad. We need the European market and the European market needs our goods. The expedient proposed is the Fordney bill, with the American valuation plan, which is practically a prohibitive tariff measure. Exchange is mutual. No trade is possible where one party is excluded from participation. We cannot induce Europe to buy if we forbid her to pay. We cannot collect by making it impossible for her to settle. We cannot force our goods through a tariff erected by ourselves. If we don't want a foreign market, let us be frank enough to say so, and destroy the means of securing it. If we do want one, let us be frank enough to say so, and remove as best we can the present obstruction, and see to it that no future ones are placed in its way.

What you have just read affects the man working in an iron foundry or a harvester factory. Five million men are out of work in this country BECAUSE WE ARE NOT SHIPPING GOODS TO EUROPE. Ten millions of men will be out of work if that continues. Our customers live abroad, those that take up the slack in our labor market.

If we do not arrange to deal with those that live outside of the United States, there won't be enough work for those that live INSIDE of the United States.

Professor John B. Clark of Columbia University says of the "American Valuation" plan:

It is a vicious system which imposes a duty calculated upon an original American price plus an enhancement which the duty itself will cause. If the whole of the duty were added to the American price there would be duties on duties which it would puzzle one to compute. The pending bill threatens to cause such a compounding of duties and to carry them to a high and at present uncertain level. Neither in theory nor in practice is this justifiable. The basis which is right in both respects is the price of articles in gold in the country from which they came.

It would cut down trade with Europe and thus cut down employment in the United States. It would puzzle and bedevil merchants, making bad conditions infinitely worse.

The intention is to twist the tariff, here in America, to suit those with special interests. It is a plan to add enormously to the number of unnecessary public employes.

European valuation can be obtained accurately and without cost by the mere reading of an invoice. It would not be AMERICAN VALUATION, which can have no stability or uniformity, will involve thousands of unnecessary employes, graft and manipulation unlimited and HARD TIMES.

Suppress Drug Habit

Massachusetts Should See That the Nation's Laws Are Raised to Level of Those in This State

We like Governor Cox's suggestion that Massachusetts try to get the nation to adopt our law concerning the suppression of the drug habit. Massachusetts, with respect to the laws against the improper use of habit-forming drugs, is a leader among the States, and is even more advanced than the nation.

We ought to see that our national laws catch up with the law in Massachusetts. It is very difficult to raise the level in one State much above the level of the other States in our Union, because we encounter all kinds of difficulties with our national Constitution, and the interpretation which the courts have given it in the last hundred years, curtailing the powers of the States to deal independently with their local problems.

Letters to the Editor

The Secret of Study.

Editor Boston American:

As a constant reader of your paper I wish to express my gratitude to you for such an editorial on education as you had December 7. Such editorials concerning education, ambition and success should be repeated more often. I am also certain that such editorials are bound to wake up the dormant chord in the hearts of those who refuse to give their brains a chance to work.

Your editorial defines briefly and clearly the meaning of education, but to my opinion it lacks the material as to how one can obtain a good education and prove what's in him.

Often students ask, "How can one study? I want to study, but don't know how." I am certain that your answer would be that the secret of study is to concentrate the mind. How do you develop concentration?

KARL KAUFMAN.

Guaranteeing Japanese Empire

Editor Boston American:

Our brilliant and patriotic diplomats at Washington have just concluded a dangerous treaty which they do not understand.

Our President (I write with all respect) believed that it did not guarantee the integrity of Japan proper, but only that of Japan's outlying island possessions.

Mr. Hughes believed that Japan proper was guaranteed. Mr. Lodge probably did not comprehend the full meaning of the treaty; at least, he did not explain its full meaning in his introductory speech.

In the meantime, the leading Republican newspapers are blindly supporting a treaty which is dangerous and unnecessary for America, and which they confess that they do not fully understand, merely because it is a Republican measure.

A DOUBLE DISASTER.

Johnnie came crying to his mamma. "I've broken pussy's saucer," he whimpered. "Never mind, darlina," said mamma, "we can get puss another. How did you do it?" "I was hammering it with daddy's watch," sobbed Johnnie.

Laws of the Solar System

By Garrett P. Serviss

JOHN KEPLER, by a sort of rule-of-thumb or trial-and-error proceeding, succeeded in discovering three great fundamental laws of the solar system, which Newton afterward confirmed and reshaped mathematically. These laws state: First, that the planets all travel in elliptical orbits, having the sun in one of the two foci of the ellipse, while the opposite focus is unoccupied by any body; second, that the squares of the periods of the planets—i. e., the lengths of their "years"—are proportional to the cubes of their mean distances from the sun; third, that the radius vector (line drawn from the planet to the sun) in every case sweeps over equal areas in equal times.

Suppose we take the second of these laws and see what kind of human interest we can extract from it. A tool always gains immensely in interest when we learn how to handle it, and this law of Kepler's is one of the tools of astronomy. As we shall see in a few minutes, this law enables us to tell the distance of a newly discovered planet as soon as by observation we have ascertained the time it takes to go once around the sun.

Venus and the Earth

To see the application, take first two planets whose periods and distances both are already known, as for instance the Earth and Venus. We will use only round numbers, because they show the principle just as well, and avoid a great amount of unnecessary figuring.

Call the Earth's mean distance from the sun 92.8 million miles, and Venus's mean distance from the sun, 67.2 million miles (both very close to the real facts). The Earth's periodic time is 12.17 months of 30 days each, and Venus's periodic time is 7.5 months of 30 days each. Now the rule tells us to square the periodic times and cube the mean distances, and with these squares and cubes make an old-fashioned "rule-of-three" sum, which will show that the square of the period of the first planet multiplied by the cube of the distance of the second is equal to the square of the period of the second multiplied by the cube of the distance of the first.

The square of 12.17, the Earth's period in months, is 148.1, and the square of 7.5, Venus's period in months, is 56.25. The cube of 92.8, the Earth's distance in millions of miles, is 799,178, and the cube of 67.2, Venus's distance in millions of miles, is 303,464. From these figures we construct the following proportion: 148.1 is to 56.25, as 799,178 is to 303,464. The "rule of three" tells us to multiply together the two extremes and the two means and equate the results.

Doing this we find that 148.1 multiplied into 303,464 comes to 44,943,618, and 56.25 multiplied into 799,178 comes to 44,953,762. The products are not exactly equal, but near enough considering that we have used only approximate figures. The labor of such multiplications can be avoided by using logarithms.

How to Solve Problem

Now suppose that we did not know the distance of Venus, but only knew its period of revolution. Then we would represent its distance by the unknown quality X, and the proportion above would become: 148.1 is to 56.25, as 799,178 is to X^3 (X cubed).

To solve this we multiply the middle terms together as before, divide their product by the first term, and equate the quotient, 303,536, to X^3. Then to find X, we take the cube root of 303,536, which is very nearly 67.2—the number of millions of miles in Venus's distance.

The same rule applies to the revolution of satellites around a planet. Suppose that another satellite were found revolving around the earth in twice the period that the moon takes. It would be very easy to calculate the mean distance of the newly discovered satellite. Here we will introduce a simplification.

Instead of handling large figures, as before, let us employ ratios which will answer the same purpose. The comparison must in this case be made with the moon. Call the moon's period unity, or 1; then the new satellite's period will be represented by 2. Also call the moon's distance from the earth 1, and that of the satellite which is to be found X.

We now have the proportion: 1 squared is to 2 squared as 1 cubed is to X^3, or doing the squaring and cubing indicated: 1 is to 4, as 1 is to X^3. Then X^3, equals 4, and X, the distance of the satellite in terms of the moon's distance, equals the cube root of 4, which is very nearly 1.582. Thence the distance is 1.582 times that of the moon, or 239,000 multiplied by 1.582, which gives 378,098 miles.

TYRANNY OF POSSESSIONS

By William Prohm

THE happiest of humans is probably the tramp, when he is healthy. He has no possessions to hamper his freedom.

St. Francis of Assisi, who wedded Poverty, was a tramp with the Great Light in his heart. He preached against the tyranny of possession. He was himself the best exemplar of what he preached. And he was happy.

Many stories are told of an Episcopalian preacher of old California days who turned his back upon worldly possessions and gathered to himself the love of a county. He was Charles Caleb Pierce, who arrived in Placerville in 1861.

He had no money. He would accept none. He preached in Placerville on Sunday. Monday he took to the trail with a stout staff and a bag of religious literature. He stopped where night overtook him. Everywhere he was welcome. Any home in the county was his.

In 1903 he died, after forty-one years of such a life. He had as little of worldly goods when he ended as when he began.

On the day of his funeral no business was transacted in Placerville. It is said. The whole country was there to pay its last respects.

HAM AND EGG LUNCHEONS SERVED IN SOCIETY

By Winifred Black.

AND now there is something new in the way of luncheons, and you find the new thing in the bill of fare. Smart hostesses, tired of the oceans of tea, tons of sandwiches, and mayonnaise and ices which are served up for luncheons and afternoon teas as from everlasting to everlasting, have devised a new and delightful change.

The new luncheon is named "breakfast" oftentimes—but the collation is composed of grilled ham, fresh eggs, hot waffles and blossom-scented honey. There is to be served with these viands golden coffee with cream, or, if the guest wishes it, tea.

There is only one trouble connected with this new feature, and that is that men, when they hear of the menu, ask to come. Yes, the man who flees the ordinary luncheon or tea as he would the bubonic plague takes quite a different attitude when he hears about the ham-and-egg table.

A Real Luncheon

You can have your delicacies set out as charmingly as possible. If you want to, the waffles can be cooked by one of the little electric devices right on the table. All the fixings and furbelows, the delicate china and glass and linen of the ordinary luncheon come to the front on these as on other festal occasions. But the luncheon, you may be sure, is a real luncheon. Everything hot, dainty and delightful, with what in this country have always been called "breakfast" dishes.

Really, the breakfast dishes it seems to me, are about the best of all. It may be that it is because they come early in the day—but it seems a pity to have such delightful things as waffles, and especially when accompanied by honey, confined to the morning meal.

The varieties of entertaining introduced by American hostesses are a delightful study. There's nothing so gracious as hospitality, and everything which gives to a social function the touch of wholesome and hearty originality, or which suggests that the hostess has thought and planned for the pleasure of her guests, is especially welcome. Of course, there is nothing important, when you really come to think of it, in the character of the refreshments served at a luncheon to-day. It is only the desire to please, which lies at the back of the menu, which is worth noting.

Everything that comes from a kind heart, studied by a clever brain, is welcome when you come to home entertainment.

I remember when Cousin Kate went one day to take some new shoes to the children of a mother who had to work properly to support her children—when Kate reached the clean, orderly little house with her three pairs of heavy Winter shoes for the three boys—how Mrs. Casey met her with such a smile of greeting that she felt doubly repaid for her long street car ride and walk.

Of the Heart.

The two women sat down by the fire in the neat kitchen, and Mrs. Casey insisted on giving Kate a cup of fresh brewed tea. This, with a slice from a new baked loaf, made a delightful luncheon. There was no butter in the house but by great good luck there was a little sugar. To this day Kate maintains that she was never more beautifully entertained than by this hard-working mother, in her little kitchen, and with her cup of tea set upon a spotless little tablecloth, while they talked over the three boys at school.

Some one asked Kate if she did not have some qualms about accepting the tea and bread from a woman known to be in such straits as was Mrs. Casey. But Kate said she could no more have refused that simple refreshment at Mrs. Casey's hands than she could have walked off carrying back with her the stout shoes which had been ordered to fit Billy and Jimmy and Harold.

Hospitality is all of the heart.

YOU CAN BE YOUR OWN BOSS IF YOU TRY

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

JOHNSON was a red-headed boy in a machine shop, when he was seized by the ambition to become a foreman.

He could not see his way towards the goal, until one day a clever salesman served as the eyeopener. He was told he could be a foreman or even a superintendent, as soon as he had had enough practice in bossing men.

That seemed impossible to young Johnson, for he was only a cub and under everybody else's orders. The salesman assured him that there was one man on whom he could practice—and that was Johnson!

So Reddy began to boss Johnson!

He enjoyed the game and played it to such good effect—ordering himself about, checking himself up, making himself study foreging everlastingly after him self—that only he became assistant foreman and foreman, superintendent of another factory, and finally his own boss.

Through plenty of stern practice in bossing the several Johnsons in him, he had mastered himself. So he was prepared to master and direct others.

Only a story; but it has been true from King David's day to this, that self-mastery is among the greatest of achievements and indispensable to any kind of success.

The moralists of all the ages have assured us that each of us is a case of dual personality, that we have two natures struggling within us, that we are made up of a lower and higher self.

Many in One

All of which is rather simple and naive, and would hardly be confirmed by what modern psychology has revealed regarding our human nature. Evidently we are not only two, but many personalities rolled into one. Each of us runs a considerable gamut of possibilities, from miserable sinner to angelic saint, and from silly fool to sage and seer.

But, for practical purposes, it is easier—at the small risk of divided consciousness—to think ourselves as two personalities, the one as we are and planned for the other as we would wish to be.

And the Johnson game is to put the Real You in command. Then proceed to boss yourself—until YOU become the master. The measure of your success in that process will be the measure of your success in whatever you undertake, and certainly in the Game of Life, whose reward is Character.

Children cannot too early be taught to play the game, nor do we ever grow beyond the playing of it. That is, none but the "perfect"—and they are negligible, anyhow.

As soon as you find that your child is forming the habit of blaming others or charging circumstances with his failures or shortcomings or pranks, teach him firmly that he alone is responsible. Tell him that there is a boy inside of him whom he can command to feel and think and say and do as he wishes.

Tell him that he can control his body and his mind, his conduct and his digestion, and will be amazed to find how quickly his budding manhood will respond, and how eagerly he will enter into the fun of the game, fairly boosting himself into obedience to the Best that is in him.

In this way, pride and dignity may be developed in the growing child, and an early start be made towards self-mastery.

Playing the Game

We say you find yourself loafing on your job. At once you order your "Johnson" to work. You shame yourself out of shirking. Or, perhaps, you find that you are lazy in your civic duties. You boss "Johnson," until he gets busy at primaries and votes. Or you see that you are timid in friendship and niggardly in sympathy. Deliberately, therefore, you set "Johnson" on especially difficult task of sympathetic service.

Probably, many a cowardly soldier in the recent war forced himself to heights of heroism by self-command of this order.

It is inspiring to discover what wonders we can perform with ourselves, once we assume full charge and control.

Any neurologist will assure you that, if you are inclined to a case of nerves and if you talk and reason with yourself in the first five seconds of an oncoming attack, you can be nervous but you will not have you.

That is the meaning of the greatest human secret, ten or a hundred, or to keep on counting, if a storm of passion threatens to overcome you.

Or, to speak again in positive terms, if you are striving to become an artist, a singer, a speaker, a writer, a player, a merchant or mechanic, a lawyer, physician or whatever role you choose to enact, always it is necessary for you to "boss Johnson" and train him to play up to the standard of that part.

DON'T TALK TOO MUCH

Wives sometimes talk about the business matters of the firm which employs their husbands and then it gets back to the boss with the result that the employe is not trusted any more with business secrets of the firm, even though he makes good and progresses in his line of work.

Children get peculiar ideas about some of the things their fathers tell about business and in an attempt to repeat them often say things harmful to the concern, which are not what they heard at all.

"There are some men who wish to appear close to the inner councils of the firm by which they are employed, and such men often make statements to their friends about the firm, which are harmful and untrue.
